RODE ALONG LYNN BOULEVARD WITH VICTIM'S BODY

CONFESSES KILLING MARSH

NEW REIGN OF TERROR IN MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Startling reports that Americans in Mexico are now in even greater peril than before the Huerta regime have been received today by the State Department. As usual, the department has taken no action.

Rebels in the Northern States are raiding the country side and are adopting the methods of the barbarous bandits of General Emilio Zapata's army in Morelos. Millions of dollars worth of property is being destroyed. The insurgents are looting ranches and burning buildings, while livestock is being stolen daily to provision the rebel bands.

Confirmation of reports that Emilio Madero, a brother of Francisco I. Madero, has been executed by federal forces is lacking. Belief prevails here that the circumstantial account of Emilio Madero's death was wrong. This belief is supported by the government, President Huerta having issued a statement to the effect that Emilio is still alive.

Emilio Madero is now reported to be at the head of 1,000 men on his way to Coahuila to join Governor Carranza's insurgent forces. Raoul Madero, another brother, is also said to be forming a rebel legion in Coahuila.

May Have to Explain.

New complications for the Huerta government are indicated in the reported demand of insurance companies, through the federal government, of an explanation of the killing of former President Francisco Madero.

The deposed President, who was shot down near the penitentiary in an alleged fight between federals and Maderists, carried heavy life insurance, and the surviving Maderos have demanded payment on the policy, of which Senora Madero is beneficiary. It was learned today that the insurance companies, which are United States institutions, would ask the State Department to demand an explanation from Mexico and that possibly an effort would be made by the companies to collect the indemnity.

Porfirio Diaz has informed some of his close friends that he may not come back to Mexico until after the general election.

In one of his cables old General Diaz said:

"I do not wish to see Mexico in the throes of revolution. I would be happier to return when the country is at peace.

Issue Appeal to 12,000 to Join Strike

General strike pleas, printed in English and Yiddish, were scattered through the garment manufacturing district today, urging the 12,000 workers employed on ready-made clothing for women and girls to follow the example of the New York strikers. It is now said that this branch of the industry will strike within another

Abe Rosenberg, international president of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and Miss Josephine Casey, a leader in the New York strike, arrived here today to take charge of the local situation. They will be the principle speakers at a mass meeting of the union at No. 31 North Russell street this evening.

"Sisters and Brothers!

"We ask you to consider carefully the means you now have to obtain your rights individually and the means the Waist and Dressmakers of New York have adopted to better their conditions of labor. Consider them, and we are sure that you will adopt the same means.

"In Union Their is strength! Organize and you will win? We are not talking of impossibilities when we say that your wages can be raised, and your hours of labor can be made shorter, if only you organize. Tens of thousands in our own Ladies Garment trades have proved it! We urge you to come to our meeting tonight."

With the exception of a few agreements entered into with some of the smaller contractors, the struggle in the three-week strike of the United Garment Workers—the men's clothing branch of the industry—has remained unchanged for the last twenty-four hours.

Agreements have been entered into with sixty-two firms by this union, out of 180 shops affected, since their initial strike order issued. This places almost 2,500 back at work, leaving 2,000 still idle. The union is paying strike benefits to the most needy among those on strike.

Moses, Medford's Fire Cat, Gets Ride in the 'Hurry Up'

Moses, the Medford fire cat, is a very much disgusted six-year-old puss today. He suffered the humiliation of riding in a patrol wagon after being found, not among the bulrushes, but in a pile of fire hose at a Trainer street blaze, the other day.

Moses was snoozing among the hose in the fire wagon at the Central Fire Station when an alarm came in. The fire cat's slumbers were not disturbed by the rapid ride across the city, but when the fireman found Moses among the hose they feared that their pet would get lost.

Patrolman Fred Black "locked up" Moses inside the steel cage of the patrol wagon and the cat was given a "hurry up" ride back to the fire station. Moses didn't like the idea of being placed under arrest in the horse town and hopped down promptly. Today he keeps away from the fire wagons. When he sees a policeman's brass buttons approaching Moses does a "double quick" to the fire station loft.

Harvard Man Says He'll Sing at Night Upon the Common

It came out when a poster was stuck up around the college by N. R. O'Hara, a Harvard sophomore, stating that tonight he will hold forth on Cambridge Common on dancing, music, woman's suffrage and love, and will sing "The Old Oaken Bucket," and "When the Swallows Homeward Fly," songs which never fail to offend, as he stated on his poster. The price for this novel entertainment is listed at a quarter.

MURRAY HAS FIGHT IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Representative Murray of Massachusetts and Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms Ketron indulged in a fist fight on the floor of the House today and this is how it happened:

In the turmoil following the vote on the balloting question Representative Murray ascended to the Speaker's desk and kept shouting "Parliamentary inquiry" at the chairman, Representative Alexander of Missouri.

The chair refused to listen to Murray and told him to go to his seat.

"I won't & any such thing," said Murray. "I have a right here."

"The sergeant-at-arms will remove this gentleman," said Chairman Alexander.

Deputy Ketron ascended the platform and threw Murray down three steps. Then Ketron and Murray engaged in a fist fight until they were separated. Representative Fitzgerald, of New York, and Representative Sheeley, of Kentucky, who has a long, grasped Murray and pinioned his arms, when the excitement cooled off.

ROTHSCHILD WEDS UNDER GOLD CANOPY

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The Central Synagogue was filled with a distinguished company to witness the wedding of James, the elder son of Baron Edmond Rothschild of Paris, and Dorothy, the only daughter of Eugene Pinto of Carlton Gardens. The ceremony was solemnized beneath a canopy of gold embroidered white satin, festooned with white flowers and supported by gold poles. The family of the bridegroom showered the bride with magnificent jewels. There were many diamond tiaras, necklaces, bracelets and ropes of pearls.

AND DOW GUILTY OF LARCENY

Stephen R. Dow, the former mining promoter, was found guilty in twenty-four counts of larceny out of the ninety-two counts charged against him, when a sealed verdict turned in by the jury last night was opened before Judge Brown in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today.

In the indictment Dow was charged with larceny of $300,000 in ninety-two counts from four mining companies of which he had been president.

The verdict was opened and read at 9:45. Dow was given fifteen days in which to file exceptions to the verdict. Bail was renewed in $25,000.

Sentence will not be imposed, it is expected, until the time for filing exceptions has passed. Dow took the verdict with outward calm. He came into the courtroom at 9 o'clock, knowing that the jury had agreed and that a verdict was waiting for the judge.

Dow sat down for a few moments, moved about nervously, then went out in the corridor for a stroll and to work off the fire repressed emotion. When Judge Brown entered the courtroom, Dow was right behind him, his face pale, but his nerves under control.

He handed his overcoat to his attorney, Frank Paul, and waited to hear the verdict.

When it was read he gripped the rail a little tighter, but gave no further sign.

It was thought that Dow had perceived that his case was weakening and that he was not surprised at the adverse decision.

The twenty-four counts on which Dow was found guilty cover amounts totalling $251,764. This is the aggregate which the jury decided Dow had taken unlawfully from the treasuries of the four mining companies which he controlled.

The ninety-two counts on which Dow was indicted covered four different offences—larceny, receiving stolen goods, conversion to his own use of company funds and fraudulent appropriation.

The twenty-four counts on which Dow was found guilty relate to fraudulent appropriation and conversion.

On twenty-four counts relating to receiving stolen goods the jury had been directed by Judge Brown to find Dow not guilty. Assistant District Attorney Webber had recommended the dropping of one count of larceny, as not being clear. Other counts were eliminated by the jury, which found Dow guilty in twenty-four instances.

WILLIAM A. DORR on the witness stand telling his dramatic story in connection with the killing of George E. Marsh, the millionaire soap maker of Lynn, for whose death Dorr is now on trial in the Salem courthouse.

DORR'S OWN STORY OF AUTO DEATH RIDE

In the Salem courtroom, so crowded that men and women stood around the walls and choked the doorways, William A. Dorr of Stockton, California, today told the jury which is to pass upon his fate how he shot George E. Marsh of Lynn last April while both were riding in an automobile on the Lynn boulevard.

DORR IS VERY COOL.

Dorr's poise was remarkable. He was so eager to take the witness stand that he appeared to throw off all the weakness brought on by his recent illness and the strain of his ordeal. He was self-possessed, calm, and spoke in a clear, but rather low voice.

He attacked the government's theory as to the place where the murder was committed and on a chart introduced by an engineer for the defense pointed out where the actual killing of Marsh occured.

He said it was at the junction of the boulevard and Oak Island Grove street, which is a mile and a half from where the body was found, near the boundary of Swampscott and Essex Counties.

Says Killing Was in Revere.

According to his claim the murder was committed within the town of Revere. The government has contended that the murder was committed in Lynn. Attorney Barney for Dorr claims that the killing was in Suffolk County and that on Essex County jury should not have sat upon the case. He promises to take the case to the Supreme Court on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, in the event of an adverse verdict. Dorr's story concerning the killing of the aged soap manufacturer follows:

After waiting days to see him alone he at last went to the tailor's on March 11, and when he came out I invited him to ride in the auto and talk over my aunt's affairs. While in the automobile he had kept looking at me, over and over again. He looked in a funny way. I had told him how busy my aunt felt, about how Harry Marsh and the agents had treated her when he suddenly said: "Are you a nephew or not? I believe you just live there as cooks."

I did not know just what to say so—then said I guess I was. Mr. Marsh had said that when we came to the cross street he did not wish to

FOSS REPLIES TO CHARGE OF GOV. BALDWIN

Governor Foss disagrees most emphatically with Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, who is reported today as saying that "the people of Massachusetts are more apt to resort to violence to carry their point than Connecticut citizens." Here is the answer Governor Foss gives to Governor Baldwin:

I don't know just how much the citizens of Connecticut are apt to resort to violence, but I do know from my experience as Governor of this Commonwealth for three years that the average citizen of Massachusetts is as good a citizen from every standpoint as the average citizen of any State in the Union.

I was somewhat surprised to read that Governor Baldwin, who is credited with being a conservative, made such radical statements in criticism of the people of Massachusetts.

Governor Baldwin says that the Bay State's people are a good deal more impulsive than the people of Connecticut.

In one sense I agree with him, and that is that the people of Massachusetts are more impulsive in taking up measures of reform for the public good, both socially and industrially.

This is evidenced by the legislation now on our statute books.

The Governor of a neighboring State was speaking at a business men's dinner at Thompsonville. In talking of "violence" he referred to the case a year ago where a labor union representative was "blackjacked in Springfield.

WOMEN PLEAD FOR VOTE AT STATE HOUSE

Women suffrage was favored by Socialists, Progressives, Democrats, Republicans and labor representatives, as well as by women of the Equal Suffrage League at a hearing before the legislative Committee on Constitutional Amendments at the State House today on the annual question of whether the word "male" as a qualification for voting shall be stricken out of the Massachusetts Constitution.

The great majority were feminine supporters of the suffrage petition. They included women of all ages, from college girls to gray-haired matrons and spinsters.

The arguments for equal suffrage were opened by three Socialists, Squire E. Putney, Harriett L. Clark and Warren Carpenter.

Suffrage speakers who followed them included former Congressman Samuel L. Powers of Newton, Louis D. Brandeis, Joseph Walker and Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of the Progressives, Joseph Preston Peabody (Mrs. Lionel Marks), the Cambridge poet and playwright; Mrs. Maran Booth Kelly, Mrs. Maude Wood Park and Miss Louise Crowley.

Henry Sterling, the Boston labor official, secured permission, before the arguments began, to speak for union labor in favor of equal suffrage.

Letters for the suffragists were received from Congressman Samuel W. McCall of Winchester, Charles S. Bird of Walpole, Progressive candidate for Governor last Fall, and Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

DORR TELLS OF HIDING BODY IN AUTO

ride any farther and asked me to take him back to the Y. M. C. A.

Doubted Relationship.

It was right after that while we were talking about Harry Marsh, my aunt and myself, that Mr. Marsh asked right out whether I was Orpha Marsh's nephew or not or just living the part.

We had reached his street (Indicating Oak Island street in Revere) on the boulevard, when I started to stop the machine, and stopped it. I asked him what he meant. He said: "Are you her nephew or not?"

I asked him again what he meant. He said: "There has been some discussion concerning whether you are or not." By this time I had stopped the car. I said: "Some discussion? What do you mean by some discussion?"

At this point the defendant breathed hard, his pallor increased, and he gripped the witness shelf with both hands. He stared repeatedly from the jurors to his counsel. His eyes seemed to sparkle as he told of the shooting. He then related how he took the machine up and down the boulevard with the dead body of Marsh beside him and of other automobiles passing past him in both directions. This was at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"What did you attempt to do then?" asked Attorney Barney.

I started to run away. I got out of the machine. Then I got in again. I tried to cover the body with a robe. I didn't know just what to do.

First I thought of going to California with it. Then I thought I would take it to his home. I ran my machine up and down that boulevard several times. I got up as far as Chatham street in Lynn. That was only a short distance from the Marsh home. I intended to leave the body there but lost my courage.

I then I went back on the boulevard and ran the machine up and down. The body of Marsh was in the machine, but nobody noticed the body. More automobiles passed.

Thinking.

I went down to the end of the fence where the good road ends. Then I turned. I decided to take the lifeless body out. I stopped the auto at the roadside and took the body out. I laid it beside the road. I wanted to place it where it would be found.

While I was placing the body some automobiles went past and hailed me.

Attorney Barney asked the defendant what he meant by placing the body by the roadside.

"Was the body inside or outside the fence?"

Dorr replied that the body was just inside the fence.

Dorr continuing, said:

I went to my lodgings on School street, Lynn, and got my things and hurried to Boston.

On my way over the road I threw my revolver into the water. It was on the boulevard near the bridge when

"MARSH GRABBED ME BY THE THROAT AND THEN I SHOT HIM"

Dorr told of his ride in the automobile with Marsh and of their quarrelling over what Dorr considered an insult to Orpha Marsh, the aunt in California. Then Dorr said:

"He (Marsh) grabbed me by the throat, and I hit him over the head with a wrench. I couldn't break his hold. He held my throat with both hands. Then —and then—is when I shot him."

and then—and then—is when I shot him.

Dead Companion in Auto.

When Dorr had reached this point in his dramatic recital of the tragedy a uncanny stillness prevailed in the court room. The jurors were leaning forward to catch every word that fell from the lips of the pallid youth. Judge Quinn with his chin resting upon his left hand had moved his chair so near to the prisoner that he could have easily touched him. It was a dramatic moment. The witness had remained firm and his speech was clear.

Dorr stood erect. His head was thrown back. His eyes seemed to sparkle as he told of the shooting. He then related how he took the machine up and down the boulevard with the dead body of Marsh beside him and of other automobiles passing past him in both directions. This was at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"What did you attempt to do then?" asked Attorney Barney.

I started to run away. I got out of the machine. Then I got in again. I tried to cover the body with a robe. I didn't know just what to do.

While I was placing the body some automobiles went past and hailed me.

Attorney Barney asked the defendant what he meant by placing the body by the roadside.

Dorr replied that the body was just inside the fence.

Dorr continuing, said:

I went to my lodgings on School street, Lynn, and got my things and hurried to Boston.

On my way over the road I threw my revolver into the water. It was on the boulevard near the bridge when I threw it away. The revolver found and produced here in court is the same as mine.

Wrote Death Diary.

I went direct to the Richwood Hotel on Tremont street, Boston. Then I drove my auto to a garage and left it. I then went back to the hotel and paid my bill so that I could hurry to New York.

I wrote that diary to condemn myself for what I had done. It was not written from day to day. The diary was partly written at the Richwood Hotel and partly in New York while I was waiting for a Chicago train.

I had kept a diary in which I had recorded my expenses and movements. This other diary, which I sent to my aunt, was quite a regular diary. I made the entries in that to explain to my aunt. I did not know what to tell her. I knew that my uncle, Mr. Marsh had been shot before I got to California. I did not want her to know that I had done it. That is why I got in about the negro. But I did want to have her know that I had saved her.

I didn't tell her when I left or where I was going. I didn't say goodbye to her or anybody. When I reached Stockton I registered myself by putting on overalls and dyeing my skin and hair. I felt miserable. It was an awful place to be in. All I wanted was to see my aunt again. I was afraid of the Stockton police.

Meets Rich Mr. Marsh.

Before describing the killing, Dorr had detailed his early life. He told about his journey to the East, his purchase of a second-hand automobile, and his daily trips to Lynn, finally meeting the wealthy opportunity to see George E. Marsh alone. This was on the afternoon of April 11. Telling of his movements, he said:

When I approached him on the street, after he came out of the tailor's and after I had followed the trolley car to the suburb, we had a talk. He didn't recognize me at first. I told him I was going to surprise him and he surprised me. I told him I was William A. Dorr of Stockton, a nephew of Orpha Marsh, and that I had come to see him about my affairs. He asked me if Orpha was here. I said I had come alone. He kept looking at me. I told him I guess he forgot to whom he had loaned $200 and I reminded me of it. I told him I was the man who had the lease. Then he said: "Oh, yes, yes."

He said that we could not talk there. I suggested that we take a ride in my automobile and he accepted. This was on the afternoon of April 11. I told him what I had come for. He knew that my aunt was dissatisfied with the way I was handling affairs. He asked me what the trouble was. I told him there was a good deal of it, into details, that it was a long story. He said: "What is the trouble, anyway, out there? I have been getting complaints for two years."

Talked of $500 Loan.

I did not know that. I didn't know. I told him that her income was not sufficient. I told him she needed more money. I told him that I paid her $20 a month board, that a young lady who was boarding paid $20, and that I had a Chinese boy help her all he could. We talked about a loan of $500, and about that $7,000 which Harry had refused to pay. I told him about Milner and about Crane and Washington. He said he had the most absolute faith in them and that he was anxious to have things done as his brother had wished.

I told him what he probably had not known before I told him that Washington had mixed up with another estate, that he had been of such a character, that Mr. Milner was obliged to dissolve partnership. Mr. Marsh expressed surprise.

Then we talked about Harry, Marsh and myself. I told him I thought it was too bad to have Harry treat my aunt as he did when she thought so much of him and when she had been raised with her. Mr. Marsh kept looking at me. Then he said the insulting about my aunt.

TAFT WRITES FIRST MESSAGE UPON BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—For the first time in the history of the American government, a budget message was submitted to Congress by the chief executive of the United States, when President Taft today sent to the Senate and the House of Representatives a statement, in budget form, on the financial condition of the various government departments, together with certain recommendations and estimates on revenues and expenditures.

This departure from precedent, the President said, was actuated "by experience and common sense," and was supported "by the judgment and experience that has obtained in the management of corporate bodies, both public and private" in which the executive head annually sets forth "what has been done during the past year and what it is proposed that the corporation shall do during the next year."

Charges Great Waste.

Though President Taft did not charge directly that this failure, for more than a century to issue a budget from the White House, had caused a waste of the public's money, he at least charged great carelessness when he said that this government, with expenditures of "more than one thousand million dollars each year," may be said "to so without a plan or program" as to its finances.

The President sees not the advantage to Congress of a budget submitted by the "responsible head of the administration" but, on the contrary, assumes it will usually defeat the work of that body in making appropriations.

After reviewing, with tables of statistics, the various departments of the financial side of the government, the President concluded his message with a number of recommendations.

In regard to his previous recommendation to effect an economy by putting postmasters upon the classified list, declaring that the result would be a saving of $4,512,000.

The sinking fund act, he said, had "become a dead letter," and should be revised.

A recommendation, that he dealt at length with, was that "the government at Washington should be housed in public buildings which should be built in such manner as to conform to a general plan of public buildings for the government within the city," and he proposed that it would be well to spend from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 within the next two years to carry out the program. The saving in rent now being paid by the District of Columbia, which would be affected by such a program, the President said would warrant the investment of $100,000,000.

Would Issue Bonds.

The President proposed that bonds should be issued and money borrowed thereon for the government's land purchases, buildings and public works, with the cost proportioned over a period of twenty years, and with the bonds paid out of a sinking fund.

In order that the government might be more efficiently administered the President recommended that a bureau of administrative control should be established, which would really be a consolidation of the six auditors' offices and the comptroller of the currency and the other central accounting offices, into one executive bureau.

Endorsement was given to the proposition of certain Congressmen that a budget committee should be established as a final clearing house.

On the sinking fund, he said:

The Sinking Fund.

I recommend that the present law be amended so as to adapt the annual charge against the revenues to the actual requirements and that the book balance be canceled. To provide gold with which to meet the emergencies, I recommend that authority be given to transfer the $150,000,000 general fund gold reserve to the sinking fund as well as $117,000,000 advanced for the Isthmian Canal from the general fund, the latter amount to be obtained by issue of 20-year bonds of the national government.

Wants Central Bureau.

The President's recommendation as to the manner of effecting a more efficient administration of the government's finances was to establish a bureau of central administrative control, with a controller at the head who would be responsible to the President and to Congress.

Concretely the proposal is to consolidate the six auditors' offices as well as the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury and the other central accounting offices of the government in one executive bureau and thereby, without increasing cost, to provide for a central accounting, auditing and reporting organization, which would include among its activities the preparation of a budget supported by a book of estimates and a consolidated financial report for the government.

This agency would also serve in the capacity of an independent agency for the preparation of special reports when requested either by the Congress or by the President.

HOLLIS LOSES TWO; ORDER FOR INVESTIGATION

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 26.—Just prior to the taking of the thirty-second ballot for United States Senator today, Representative Charles A. Perkins of Manchester, Republican floor leader in the house, offered an order providing for an investigation into rumors of bribery and the use of money in connection with the election. Hollis lost two votes in today's ballot.

Supporting his motion, Representative Perkins declared that while aimed at no particular man or candidate, enough had been said openly to bring the good name of the New Hampshire Legislature into question.

Representative William J. Ahern of Concord, Democratic leader, welcomed any investigation.

"The campaign for Henry F. Hollis," said Representative Ahern, "has not cost anyone a single dollar and not a dollar has been promised to any one. The Democrats welcome any investigation. We are not the ones to be afraid of anything will not be the ones to be hurt."

Democrats joined with Republicans and Progressives in adopting the measure for an investigation.

The order:

Whereas, certain rumors are in circulation to the effect that offers of money have been made to members of the Legislature to influence their vote for or against candidates for United States Senator, and

Whereas, certain rumors are in circulation to the effect that promises have been made by members of the Legislature or other improper considerations have been offered for or against candidates for United States Senator, and it is important that the same be investigated in order that any stigma upon the reputation of any member of the House may be removed, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Speaker be authorized to appoint a committee of three to investigate any and all such rumors that may be brought to their attention with power to engage counsel to examine witnesses orally or upon deposition and to compel the attendance of witnesses in the same manner as provided by law for the attendance of witnesses before the Superior Court. Such committee shall report its findings to the House at the earliest possible date.

While Hollis lost two votes from yesterday, Pearson, the Republican caucus candidate, lost seven. The Republican breaks favored Bartlett of Portsmouth, whose votes jumped from one yesterday up to seven today.

The four Manchester Democrats sat tight in opposition to Hollis. So did Republican Chairman Whitcomb of Swanzey. Hollis gained a Republican, Lemuel S. Beckman of Newport, but lost a Republican who he had yesterday, Orilla M. Pennetton of Manchester.

Hollis also lost a Democrat, Elna J. Fletcher of Greenfield, who voted for Woodbury. The Progressive vote went to Bartlett of Conway. The Republican break resulted in the smallest vote for Pearson that he has had yet.

The ballot today was:

Whole number	406
Necessary to choice	204
Henry F. Hollis, Democrat	199
Edward H. Bartlett, Republican	141
William J. Britton, Progressive	8
Gordon W. Woodbury, Democrat	6
John H. Bartlett, Republican	12
Chrvnce E. Carr, Democrat	1
Robert P. Bass, Progressive	13
Frank A. Musgrove, Progressive	1

NEW ENGLAND FOLKS IN PANIC IN FIRE ON LINER SUWANNEE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 26.—Passengers on the Merchants & Miners steamship Suwanee, among them a number of New England people, were panic-stricken when fire was discovered in the hold of the ship before daylight. Men and women rushed to the decks thinly clad, and two of them, a man and a woman, had to be restrained from leaping overboard. The flames damaged the cargo to the extent of $10,000.

The ship, badly listed, later proceeded to Jacksonville for the discharge of her cargo, and will return to Baltimore for repairs. The passengers continued their journey by rail.

STEAMER BURNS IN EAST RIVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The freighter Mohawk, a Lubec steamer, caught fire this morning in East River, opposite Twenty-sixth street, and, surrounded by tugs, drifted down the river. Several of the crew were overcome by smoke, but all were rescued. Tugs hitched onto the doomed vessel and started for Hicks or 44th where it was proposed to sink her in shallow water. Despite the efforts of the firemen from the fireboats the flames broke from the hold, and, fanned by a heavy wind, spread rapidly, driving the firefighters from the ship's deck back to the tugs.

R. I. GUARANTY OF BONDS ASKED BY CHAMBERLIN

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 26.—Following a conference with Governor Pothier President Chamberlin of the Grand Trunk Railroad addressed the lower branch of the Legislature today and in a brief but pointed speech presented his plans for the financing the work of extending the Grand Trunk system from Palmer, Mass., to this city.

President Chamberlin expressed an earnest desire to complete the extension of his railroad, but said that it would be necessary for the State to guarantee the bond issue.

Although Governor Pothier declined to discuss the nature of his conference with the railroad head, it is generally believed in this city that he is in accord with the plan of President Chamberlin.

President Chamb rlin arrived in the city on his private car "Nona en ure." He was accompanied by Cy Warman and George C. Jones, vice president of the Central Vermont. At 8 P. M. o'clock, vice president of the Southern New England met the party and escorted President Chamberlin to the State House.

The proposed extension of the Grand Trunk is proposed by President Chamberlin today would mean an expenditure of $8,000,000.

MRS. WILSON LOSES WATCH SECOND TIME

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President-elect, is advertising for a gold watch, a gift from her husband, which she has lost twice in the last two years. The number of the watch is 70,281, and she offers a reward of $25 for its return.

CONTEST RACE FOR $40,000 TO END ON FRIDAY

Two days left!

No subscriptions will be accepted after 10 p. m. on Friday, February 28, except those mailed up to then as shown by the postmark.

Candidates are hereby notified that all coupon votes now being printed will be valueless after Friday, March 7. This gives contestants only one week after the contest closes in which to gather and turn in the coupon votes.

Rush in your subscriptions. Don't hold back until the last hour or the last day.

Don't give up. Don't quit. It's the fighting spirit that counts now.

Remember, the rewards will go to the workers. If you work, you will win. If you do not work, you cannot expect to be among the fortunate ones.

Forty thousand dollars in cash and prizes is dependent upon your efforts in the next two days. Don't give up the fight for a single minute. A few subscriptions may mean to you the difference between a minor prize and one of the big awards.

Don't forget that your opponents are straining every nerve to gather in all subscriptions in sight. Are you doing the same? You will be disappointed if you lag in your efforts.

Fight it out to the finish. Don't lose courage. Make one final subscription spurt to the big goal.

The "show-down" comes Friday night at 10 o'clock.

Weather Man Sticks to It; Snow, He Says

Where is that snowstorm the Weather Man predicted was coming to Boston on Monday? "Coming," he answers today. "It's probably deferred only a few days, he adds. We're going to get it sometime, that he's sure of.

If nothing happens it will be here tomorrow, but then, if it doesn't come, why look for it the day after, and then the day after that. Keep on looking for it, anyway. Stick to it.

The forecast for tomorrow says warmer. It is possible that if the "warmer" is much warmer there will be rain instead of snow. And then what will the Weather Man say?

DID NOT LIE DOWN FOR FIVE WEEKS

School Girl Had Serious Bronchial Cough—Cured it With Father John's Medicine.

"Three years ago I was confined for six weeks with bronchitis. I had a bad attack, coughed all winter and was in the care of a physician.

Last winter, when I had another attack as bad, a lady recommended Father John's Medicine. I commenced taking it in a few weeks, and since then have never missed a day in school. I owe a great deal to it as the results were most favorable. My attack last winter was so bad I was propped up in bed every night for five weeks to get a little rest." (Signed) Vera Virginia Stief, Newark, Ohio.

Mothers should realize the value of Father John's Medicine as a family remedy for coughs, colds and as a body builder, because it is pure and wholesome, free from alcohol and dangerous drugs and not a patent medicine, but a doctor's prescription.

TO TRY MRS. PANKHURST FOR BOMB OUTRAGE

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was today held for trial, charged with exciting women to blow up the house of David Lloyd George by dynamite.

The militant leader refused to give the court assurance of good conduct until the trial opened, probably in May and was ordered locked up by the judge.

"Never in British history have more abominable and cruel outrages been perpetrated than those of the women led by Mrs. Pankhurst."

With these words Counsellor A. H. Bodkin of the treasury department opened the hearing of the government's case.

Although Mrs. Pankhurst was arraigned in a scathing manner, she sat calmly through it with a smile on her lips.

"She is the leader of the militant suffragettes and is the head of the woman's Social and Political union" continued Mr. Bodkin. "This organization has made violence its trade. It traffics in lawlessness. It has thrived and has become a menace. This defendant has publicly confessed to crimes which are atrocious. It is impossible to fathom the mind which conceived them. Violence has been mixed with diabolical plots to harass innocent persons who have been caused great suffering. The destruction of mail has undoubtedly caused many hardships to innocent persons."

Mr. Bodkin quoted from speeches of Mrs. Pankhurst to show her enmity against the government and especially against Mr. Lloyd-George. He declared that there was unquestionably enough evidence in the hands of the government to hold Mrs. Pankhurst and declared that this was a case for an assize jury.

Mrs. Pankhurst was arraigned in the Epsom Police Court. She was at liberty over night, having been released yesterday on bail and arrived at the police court building in an automobile. A great crowd of suffragettes and anti-suffragists had gathered to see her. Many of the suffragettes wore special uniforms made up in the colors of the "cause," that of black and gold.

They set up a wild cheer when their leader appeared, but this was drowned in the roar of groans, hisses and "boos" of the anti-s few minutes later.

PETER PASCALL SOUGHT; HIS SON SERIOUSLY ILL

A Worcester woman who is trying to locate her uncle has written the following letter to the AMERICAN:

Editor AMERICAN:

I have often read in your paper of missing people being found through your efforts. I wish you would please try to locate my uncle, Peter Pascall, who is about seventy. He went away about five years ago to work on a tobacco farm in West Springfield and that was the last we heard of him. He was a brick mason by trade.

His son is seriously ill, so we wish to find him if possible. Thanking you in advance for your kindness, I am,

Yours truly,
MRS. A. L. MILLER.

CANADA WILL BACK STEFANNSON'S TRIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, announced here today upon his return from Ottawa, Canada, that he had completed arrangements with the Canadian government to finance his voyage to the Arctic regions and confirmed also the report that the party would start in May from Victoria, B. C. Dr. Stefansson said that the National Geographic Society at Washington, the National Museum of Natural History of New York, and the Travelers' Club of Boston, which had been backing him before his negotiations with Canada, had released him so that he could accept the Canadian proposition.

ANOTHER ENGLISH AIRSHIP SCARE

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The British press today had another hysterical outburst about phantom German airships which are flying over England at night for espionage purposes. Interviews were published with a number of persons who claimed to have seen dirigible balloons with searchlights flying over British fortresses. According to the count no less than ten German balloons hovered over different parts of England all last night.

BAD BREATH

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove It. A Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, oil the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities.

They do all that dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Take one every night for a week and note the effect.

HUSBAND THREW KNIFE AT HER SAYS MRS. KING

Remarkable charges against her husband were made by Mrs. Emily King of Newton on the witness stand in the East Cambridge Divorce Court today, when her suit for divorce against Frederick W. King, a Newton contractor and builder, was heard. She charger that her husband:

Hurled a carving knife that missed her and stuck in the door at her side.

Threatened to kill her on more than one occasion.

Frequently swore at her.

Acted strangely while the King family were spending the Summer of 1911 at their Bay Side cottage.

Mrs. King asks for a decree on he ground of cruel and abusive treatment. She wants alimony and the custody of her three children: Florence, nineteen; Lena, sixteen, and Mildred, fifteen.

Mrs. King said that her husband was ill in 1911 and during the six weeks that she was at his bedside day and night he never spoke but he swore.

Describing "a most dreadful Summer vacation" spent at Bay Side, Mrs. King said that her husband came to the cottage in the middle of the night, woke her up and became angered when she didn't want to discuss financial affairs at that hour.

He went away, the witness said, with a rope, declaring that he was going to end his life. She added: "But he didn't. He came back swearing, as usual."

CHANGES IN CAR SERVICE ANNOUNCED

Beginning tonight, and continuing each night until further notice, there will be no street car service on Boylston street from 9 p. m. to 5 a. m., between Berkeley street and Dartmouth street. The construction of the Boylston street subway has made this temporary diversion necessary. All Newton and Brighton lines, the Ipswich street line, the South Huntington avenue-Jamaica Plain line, the Allston-Cross Town and Allston-Longwood avenue cars terminating at Kenmore, will be diverted through Massachusetts avenue and Columbus avenue, Berkeley and Boylston street to the subway. All other cars on Huntington avenue and Boylston street will be diverted through Dartmouth street, Columbus avenue and Berkeley street to Boylston street.

"LET CHARLESTOWN BUILD COLLIER"

"Let Charlestown Navy Yard build the proposed new government collier." This is the battle cry of the Charlestown Improvement Association, which has been taken up by the surrounding cities and towns. The contract for the new collier, which amounts to $1,100,000, will be awarded before March 4. The navy yards at Charlestown, Portsmouth, Brooklyn and Norfolk have submitted bids. Two thousand more men will be employed at the navy yard if the collier is built here. A mass meeting on the collier project will be held Friday evening at Mishawum Hall, Charlestown.

BELMONT BRIDE BRINGS 'CUPID' TO DOG SHOW

Mrs. Ethel Loraine Belmont, the chorus girl wife of young Raymond P. Belmont, son of August Belmont, the traction magnate, is in Boston to attend the All-Breed Dog Show at Mechanics Building. She has entered her prize Pekingese spaniel—his name is "Cupid" of Esplanade—and will appear with the canine youngster when he is judged with others of his class at the show.

Mrs. Belmont is stopping at the Hotel Lenox. She said she is going back on the stage and is to appear in Boston. She refused to discuss her suit for a separation from her husband, who she alleges gave her but $50 during the eight days their romance lasted.

When seen by an AMERICAN reporter Mrs. Belmont was stunningly dressed in blue broadcloth with trimmings of white lace. She wore a black velvet toque trimmed with a long osprey feather. On her left hand she wore four diamond rings.

"I am really losing money by coming here," Mrs. Belmont said. "I have been rehearsing for several weeks and early in April I am going on the stage.

"I haven't got very much money, and one must live, so I have decided to go on the stage again. I shall appear alone in my specialty—classical dancing."

"Will you appear under the name of Mrs. Belmont?" was asked.

"Well, that is my name, is it not?" she replied with a faint smile. "I have signed for a fifty-week contract and after leaving New York I shall come to Boston. I know how critical Boston audiences are, and I hope they will like me."

While Mrs. Belmont was talking she dropped her locket. It opened, and a picture fell to the floor. A slight flush spread over Mrs. Belmonts face as she said:

"I don't want to lose that picture. It is very dear to me."

The picture was that of Raymond Belmont.

"Mrs. Belmont, did you ever receive any money from Mr. Belmont's father on condition you would allow your marriage to be annulled?" she was asked. Her reply was:

Do you think I would be returning to the stage if I had any money? Raymond is in Europe now, and I don't know when he will return, but I don't expect he will be back before the Summer.

THREE FIRES, TWO IN EAST BOSTON, CAUSE EXCITEMENT

Some excitement was caused in the three-story wooden dwelling at No. 62 Maverick street, East Boston, when a kerosene oil stove exploded and set fire to the first floor early today. The fire was discovered and extinguished before much damage had been done. The building is owned by Daniel Regan.

A gasoline torch started a fire in the woodwork about a cement-mixing machine on the Common near the Park street entrance to the subway early today. The blaze caused a damage of $50. The structure was owned by Coughlin & Shields, contractors.

A man saw smoke issuing from the window of a newly built apartment house at No. 1125 Saratoga street, East Boston, early today and turned in an alarm. The noise made by the apparatus awakened the neighborhood and caused a scare among persons living in the vicinity. The alarm was needless, however, for the smoke was caused by the drying of plaster.

LINER IMPERATOR STUCK IN THE MUD

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Passengers on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, arriving last night, from Hamburg, expressed serious doubts as to whether the new Hamburg-American liner Imperator would be able to make her first voyage to New York before the beginning of August. The Imperator has sunk so deep into the mud, it is said, that she cannot be moved a inch out of her position off the Vulcan shipyards where she was launched in May.

HIKERS MAKING GOOD TIME ON BETTER ROADS

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 26.—Over the same trail traversed more than a decade ago by Corey's army, the hiking suffragettes today pattered along on their New York to Washington hike. With feet repaired and muscles soothed by the two-day rest in this city, the little army sped onward through the city and the country roads towards Laurel, Md., with speed and grace that would have made Mercury, the swift-footed Grecian gentleman, a bit envious had he seen them.

Baltimore's farewell was similar to that given by other cities. There was the usual limousined escort, the usual escort of local suffragettes who hiked several miles with the campaigners, the usual crowds, the usual cheers and the usual cries from the young element.

Horrible distress marked the beginning of the hike today. George Milton Wood and his official bugle were responsible for that. George's alec toy and he means well, but either his musical education has been neglected or some one has been monkeying with his bugle. At any rate when Georgie applied his lips to the bugle and let loose the compressed air today there issued forth sounds that can only be described in terms that are never printed in polite home newspapers.

The pilgrims, hardened warriors that they are, have grown to some used to Georgie's bugling sallies, but Baltimoreans were shocked over it.

MEXICO'S DICTATORS DECLARE DEATH TO ALL SURVIVING MADEROS

the slowness of troops to move into the rebellious zones. Troop trains which were dispatched from this city are being held up by burned bridges.

Vera Cruz is the only place that Mexico City was in direct communication with today. The government is making every effort to restore railway traffic and soldiers are being used as workmen for the construction of new trestles and bridges.

Provisional President Huerta and General Felix Diaz are confident that they will be able to spread the government's authority with soldiers as soon as rail communication is restored.

Huerta was today charged with treachery. The startling charge was made that during the past year he has secretly been in league with the revolutionary forces and that he has deliberately thrown the federal volunteers against Diaz's insurgents, knowing they would be annihilated, and thus weaken the strength of Madero.

Volunteers Sent to Slaughter.

The charges are substantiated by hospital statistics. These show that few of the regular soldiers defending the National Palace were killed during the ten days' battle of Mexico City. They show that it was the volunteers who were slaughtered. They were sent only against the rebels where the Diaz insurgents were intrenched and fell before the deadly fire, while the regulars remained out of harm's way.

There is evidence in the wholesale killing of the members of the Madero family that it is the intention of the present heads of the government to wipe the family out entirely.

This is denied by General Felix Diaz, who declared today that the government is not one of vengeance, but of justice. The execution of Emilio Madero, a brother of Francisco and Gustavo Madero, was excused by the government on the ground that he was leading a revolution against the established and recognized government.

"Proper representations have been made to U. S. Ambassador Wilson," said Foreign Minister De La Barra. "We recognize the right of the United States to inquire to what may seem wanton killing, but no investigation of the shooting of Emilio Madero will be necessary, for we already have on the best of authority that he was leading a revolt when he was killed."

The Mexican government is taking pains to impress upon the United States that it regards its big neighbor as its best friend and ally.

Zapata to Swear Allegiance.

Upon promise of amnesty for himself and his officers Emilio Zapata, the most formidable foe of provisional president Huerta, is coming to Mexico City tomorrow to swear allegiance to the provisional government, according to an announcement from De La Barra today.

After an all night cabinet meeting it was announced that American financiers had promised to lend an unlimited amount of money to the government. It had been expected previously that United States bankers would hold aloof and negotiations had been opened in Berlin and Paris for the money, but New York banking firms changed their opinions of conditions in Mexico and guaranteed to lend any sum of money that the government here needs.

General Felix Diaz, provisional president, under-in-chief made the following statement after the cabinet meeting:

"New York financiers have offered better terms to the Mexico government than Europeans bankers and we have decided to place loans there."

It is understood that the government will try to borrow $20,000,000 within the next two weeks to finance military operations and pay for the rehabilitation of this city and other places throughout the republic destroyed by rebels.

Another troop train was sent North today over the National Railway carrying 650 soldiers and a battery of field artillery. These soldiers will be sent against the insurgents in Sonora.

'DEATH TO MADEROS' GRIM ORDER ISSUED BY MEXICO'S RULER

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 26.—The rule of blood instituted by President Huerta and General Diaz means death to every member of the Madero family, whether they are found in Mexico or whether they take refuge in the four corners of the earth. The new regime has determined to exterminate the family, to wipe its name from the pages of Mexico's history.

Officers and men of the loyal troops and secret agents of the government have received plain and simple instructions—"Death to the Maderos." They are to use their guns with the utmost vigor when the relatives, young and old, men and women, of the Madero family are found. Secrecy and thoroughness in the work are specified as imperative.

The Madero fortune of $100,000,000, built up by Francisco I. Madero from the $3,000,000 left him by his father, Evaristo, will be confiscated as part of the campaign of revenge decided upon by Huerta and his chief officers. Not even the dead will be forgive Madero for his list of "those who ought to die." Plantations, mines, banks, industrial plants and jewels will be seized to exact the grim penalty.

The bloody entries on Huerta's book now contain these names:

GUSTAVO A. MADERO, brother of Francisco, and power behind his rule; shot February 19.

FRANCISCO I. MADERO, deposed President of Mexico; shot February 23.

Alberto Madero, an uncle, is reported to have been slain, but this cannot be confirmed.

Carlos Madero, a brother, studying in the United States, is overcome by the strain of the tragic events.

The grim work has proceeded with interruptions of but a few days. Who will be the next to fall? is the question being asked here. Will it be a member of the immediate family, the widow of the late President, or, perhaps, the sister who so bravely debunched those who branded as his assassins? The widow and Francisco Madero's mother have already begun their flight.

The names of those who must still satisfy the revenge of the Huerta-Diaz cry of "a life for a life" are:

FRANCISCO I. MADERO, SR.—Fleeing to Cuba.

EVARISTO MADERO, brother—Reported to have left Cornell University more than a week ago.

JULIO MADERO, brother, of San Pedro—Reported guarded by body of personal friends.

ALFONSO MADERO, brother—Present whereabouts unknown.

ERNESTO MADERO, uncle—Fleeing to Cuba.

SALVADORE MADERO, uncle—Inciting anti-rebel capital.

SENORA FRANCISO MADERO, SR., mother—Fleeing to Cuba.

SENORA FRANCISCO MADERO, JR., widow—Fleeing to Cuba and may proceed with other members of family to United States and thence to Europe.

MERCEDER MADERO, sister—Reported still in Mexico City prepared to insist on true facts of brother's death being revealed to the world.

Peculiar After Effects of Grip This Year

Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has filled many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to more serious sickness, such as dreaded Bright's Disease. Local druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50 cents and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

A New Remedy for an Old Complaint

A Scientific and Important Discovery for the Treatment of Constipation and Stomach Disorders.

The careless selection of widely advertised and ineffectual remedies is the cause of a great deal of misery. Be careful of taking without your doctor's advice. Dr. Hamilton's Pills Calomel Cascara in any form, and other drastic stuff. Besides their harmful effects on the liver, stomach and bowels they are habit forming. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a new discovery and cannot stimulate all the different organs of the body.

These herbs have been the result of experimentation and finally led to the Dr. Hamilton's Pills, a remedy that will act as a perfect combination, which does work — gently — and at the proper season. Hunyadi Janos Pills are recommended by the medical profession and they are the favorite of all the invalids. BEAUTY AND HEALTH GO HAND IN HANE

YOUTHFUL FIGURE SECRET—Gracefulness and daintiness of slender youth follow the reduction of fat tissues through use of this inexpensive, old-fashioned recipe. Mix 4 ounces of parmelia with 1½ pints of hot water. When cool, strain and take a tablespoonful before each meal. The remedy is harmless and effective, acts rapidly, requires no exercise or dieting and leaves the flesh solid and the skin unwrinkled.

OBTAINING BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXIONS —To whiten and beautify your face, neck and arms, apply freely an economical lotion made at home by dissolving 4 ounces spermaline in a half-pint of hot water, adding the remainder of ingredient. It makes the skin soft and smooth, while it removes any sallowness and roughness. Use it instead of face powder, as it does not show so plainly nor rub off so readily.

BEST TREATMENT OF HAIR—Never scratch the scalp and avoid small, greasy and oily at all times. Long, luxuriant and lustrous locks are the result of healthy heads, such as are insured by the use of a shampoo made from a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. This cures dandruff and itching scalp while removing every atom of dust and grime. It leaves the hair delightfully fluffy.—Advertisement.

HUERTA WIRES AMERICAN: "ALL IS PEACE IN MEXICO"

CITY OF MEXICO, February 25.

Editor of the AMERICAN:

The situation continues to improve visibly. In all the land the constitutional government is devoting itself to the establishment of peace and order to guarantee life and national and foreign interests. I am confident that this government, with the help of all good Mexicans, will reach a prompt as well as a patriotic settlement.

Now the only exceptional manifestation frankly hostile toward the new government is that of Coahuila, Don Venustiano Carranza, but we confidently expect that this will settle itself through moderate counsels. V. HUERTA, Provisional President of Mexico.

MORMONS LURE GIRL STUDENTS IN BATES HALL

Mrs. George W. Coleman, who is heading the anti-Mormon movement in this city, says that Mormon missionaries have invaded the quiet precincts of Bates Hall, the main reading room of the public library.

Mormon women missionaries are found there evenings watching their opportunity to talk with young women who are among the readers.

They are distributing many tracts, among others one labeled "A statement, from Josiah Quincy, Mayor of Boston, 1845-1849, concerning an interview held in 1844 with Joseph Smith, the Mormon Prophet."

Hundreds of copies of this tract are also being circulated in the schools of the Back Bay.

Mrs. Coleman gives instances of two young women, who have been approached by women Mormon missionaries. One of these young girls disappeared for some time and then turned up in Utah. The other young woman refused to go with the missionary and her parents are on the trail of this missionary to call her to an accounting.

According to Mrs. Coleman, the principals of three schools on the Back Bay have been warned against the Mormon missionaries.

Mrs. Coleman's Warning.

Mrs. Coleman said:

"The efforts of the Mormon missionaries to get converts in Boston are varied.

"They will sit at the tables in Bates Hall opposite young women, and, after reading, and try to get acquainted with them.

"Miss Esther Goldsmith of Yale city, a pretty nineteen-year-old girl, recently went to the Public Library and took a book to read. She had not been there long, when she found a woman sitting near her and began what she was doing.

"After a few minutes this woman leaned over the table quietly and asked the younger woman what she was reading. The girl replied that she was reading the history of the Jews.

"The other woman, with a show of eloquence, then replied: "I am familiar with the history of the Jews, but there is a new history of the Jews in the Old Testament to you and about the Jews better than that book."

Miss Goldsmith resented this interference on the part of this Mormon and told her so. But not to be turned aside from her purpose, the Mormon handed Miss Goldsmith a few other tracts, calling especial attention to one that includes a statement from Josiah Quincy, Mayor of Boston from 1845 to 1849, who had an interview with Joseph Smith, the Mormon prophet. This tract is being circulated in this city because of its local flavor.

Leaving Bates Hall, the Mormon missionary followed this young woman, endeavoring to get a good talk with her, before she reached the street. She said much to her about the Mormon Church, telling her that it was the real successor of the ancient Jewish Church.

Methods Reprehensible.

Now there is something radically wrong with the methods that those missionaries are pursuing. I know of a young girl, attended Radcliffe, who lately disappeared from this city.

She was a very pretty girl and had a very good education. She told some of her friends, where she was going and quietly disappeared. Finally a postal card was received by friends remarked Utah. They thought it strange that she had gone that distance, until it leaked out that a girl companion who had been with her constantly was a Mormon. The young girl students in Boston cannot be too careful.

Every one believes in the freedom this country affords, but to have these methods pursued in the Back Bay by Mormon missionaries, as recently exposed by the Boston AMERICAN is a crying disgrace to our city and State. They must be stopped.

SCHOOLS MAY DANCE IF "TROT" IS BARRED

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Dancing is to be given one more trial in East Orange, so far as school pupils are concerned. If they shun the "turkey trot" and other modern variations at the dance to be given for entertainment of the Amherst Glee and Mandolin Clubs in the Ashland School on March 28, they will be given further opportunities in the future. But if they fail to heed the warning of the Board of Education no more dances will be permitted in the schools.

Make Reservations for 35 in Chamber of Commerce Tour

Southward Ho!

The committee making the arrangements for the Boston Chamber of Commerce tour to South America has made reservations for thirty-five persons with the steamship lines. The committee announces that the entire itinerary will be carried out as planned and that it hopes to have the expected roster of fifty persons in the Boston party before starting on the trip.

The plans for the tour are attracting widespread attention, and New England manufacturers and business men particularly, are interested in the "friendship trip." Those who have already signed for the tour are enthusiastic and promise to help to carry a representative Boston enterprise.

Between now and March 1 the members of the special committee will secure as many more persons as can be induced to go. President Storrow has announced that any merchant, manufacturer or professional man in New England will be welcome.

NINE ASSAULTS ON ADRIANOPLE FAIL

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—Nine ineffectual assaults have been made by the Bulgarians upon the forts defending Adrianople on the east side within the past three weeks, it was learned today. An intercepted wireless dispatch from Adrianople stated that double rations of food are served to Turkish soldiers who distinguished themselves in action, being the most acceptable reward. The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh operated off Preveza in the Adriatic today, and is reported to be bombarding the Servian and Greek camp there.

4 BURNED IN MINE; OTHERS ENTOMBED

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Feb. 26.—Four members of a searching party, trapped by a fiery mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company by an explosion, were badly burned and are in the local emergency hospital. The fire is still raging, and mine rescue crews were rushed to the scene, as it is feared a number of miners are imprisoned behind the wall of fire.

Auto News

The suit brought against the city of New York by an automobilist because he struck a rut in the road, causing his car to overturn, will be watched with great interest by motorists. The motorist was thrown out and severely hurt. The city's contention was that he was driving so fast, considering the condition of the road and the darkness—it was at night—as to be guilty of contributory negligence or carelessness.

If suits were brought against the city of Boston for all the damage done to automobile springs and frames Corporation Counsel Corbett would have time for little else.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OIL OR SALTS, BUT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Give your stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels a thorough cleansing without gripe or nausea. Ends headache, biliousness, indigestion and constipation.

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and perfect—gentle—yet it is delicious—no dreading. It is positive and prompt—no waiting.

If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases, your head aches, or you are bilious, tervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, and in the morning all constipated waste, sour bile, gases and poisons will move on and out of the system, gently, yet thoroughly—no griping—no pain—no weakness.

In the old days people let these matters run until they needed large doses of nasty drugs or they took something severe, like castor oil, salts or cathartics, that irritate and make the bowels worse. These are the days of the gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. Ask your druggist for a bottle of genuine Syrup of Figs, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, cannot cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. This is the genuine—and reliable. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often used to deceive you. Refuse such with contempt.

WHITE PLAGUE VICTIMS SEEK DR. FRIEDMANN

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—The revolving stormdoors of the Waldorf-Astoria turned on more tuberculosis sufferers in a few hours today than possibly ever went into and out of the famous hostelry in all its previous existence.

The big hotel was the Mecca of "white plague" victims because it housed a blonde young German doctor, Friedrich Franz Friedmann, the Berlin scientist—who came here aboard the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, and brought with him what he asserts is a cure for tuberculosis in every form and stage except the unmistakably hopeless cases.

"My culture is no cure for death," the young doctor explained in his best English.

Refused $1,000,000 Offer.

The fame of the Berlin scientist grew amazingly overnight when it became known that he refused Banker Finlay's offer of $1,000,000 for proof that his cure is genuine.

The lung sufferers proverbially are the most optimistic and hopeful of all the sick people on the earth. So today they made pilgrimages to the Waldorf-Astoria to consult any specialist they fancied, but they were doomed to initial disappointment. Dr. Friedmann declined to consult patients or to make any tests himself—even when he expects to make his arrangements with the United States government. The government was the first to welcome Dr. Friedmann to America.

The first boat off the revenue cutter that went down the bay to meet the liner was Dr. Milton H. Foster of the United States public health and marine hospital service. He was the personal representative of the surgeon general of the United States. Dr. Friedmann if he would submit his cure to the government for a test, and the German substantially accepted the proposition. Details of the "experiment" were left to a conference tomorrow morning in the Waldorf between Dr. Lee and Dr. Friedmann.

Will Remain Six Weeks.

The German savant will remain in this country six weeks, and says he hopes to treat thousands of persons in that time. The treatment, he declared, would be given within four or five days, as soon as a person is pronounced in one of the New York hospitals.

If it is physically possible he will treat all who apply to him. There will be no charge for the doctor's services, he announced. He will take them as they come. All that is necessary is that they make application to him at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, but before that Lee application be made through their physicians for the sake of expediency.

"I want to distribute the remedy as fast as possible," he said, "so that the people of this country may benefit."

"It is my desire that when I leave this country no one will be able to say that I have not get the treatment because his financial means would not permit."

It is understood that the remedy from a turtle into which tubercular bacilli from a human being had been inbeted, he explained.

"I have been working upon the cure for the last few years and for the last two and a half years I have treated from 2,500 to 3,000 patients," he asserted. "How many of these have completely cured I cannot estimate, but their number has run into the hundreds. Many of the worst cases of tuberculosis except such cases as are quite hopeless—that is, on the point of death.

PUT NICENESS INTO THE SLANG TO WIN CONTEST

The committee in the AMERICAN contest for $5 for the most original and expressive slang word or words are still sending in their contributions. Many lose sight of the purpose of the contest. It is first, last and always the betterment of the English language. Put the odd test of slang to your slang expressions before sending them in. Unless your slang is that which a person of culture may use, it will have little chance to win the prize. Their slang words which they do not yield to the temptation of coining a lot of words which are of common street usage. Many clever slang words of value are being received by the editor, and the winner will have had to produce something worth while.

"Get the Crank."

A parase which will appeal to automobilists came from George C. Weed of the Newtonville garage. He suggests: "Get the crank, your self-starter doesn't work."

"Rain lurker I don't get your patter," is from Miss Beatrice Beaudry, No. 209 Walnut street, Springfield.

There are many phrases beginning with the ever popular "I should worry," as in our opinion cannot be beat. Many of its effects are meeting. Fifty per cent of the contributions begin with the expression. H. G. Rotolph of 24 Bay St. Rotolph street, suggests, "I should worry a pile and build a bunker on it."

Slang for Breakfast.

Charles M. Rogers of No. 141 Milk street submits the word "brunch" for either a late breakfast or an early lunch. Already the Oxford University students in England use "brunch" for breakfast, and it is strange that in America the names of the three meals have not been included in slang expression.

This perhaps may suggest the idea that a slang word has a better chance for popularity if it be expanded to some well-known topic, one the meaning of which is immediately clear.

Use Bellcord to Repair Engine on B. & M. 'Fast' Train

An ancient Boston & Maine Railroad engine, hauling the "fast" Boston express that leaves Portsmouth, N. H., at 7:30 o'clock a. m. daily, broke a cylinder head on the long stretch of bonny track between Hampton, N. H., and Newburyport today.

For half an hour the train crew "tossed around" to find a piece of rope or wire to tie up the broken part of the engine. Finally a passenger suggested a piece of the wire fence that borders the railroad track. The engineer and his fireman hunted about the engine and box for a wire cutter, but Mr. Mellen doesn't like expense ships so there wasn't a wire cutter aboard the train.

Finally someone discovered that the bell cord was still hanging in a couple of the cars. It was utilized to tie up the broken cylinder head and at last the "fast" New Hampshire express began to creep over the rails to Newburyport.

Here another engine was attached to the string of cars. The patrons of the road reached the North Station thirty-five minutes late.

Autos Peril to the Church, Says Dr. Worcester

The automobile is hurting the church, according to Dr. Elwood Worcester, rector of the Emmanuel Church. In the church year book he says, speaking of changes effected in the social customs of church-going people through the development of the automobile:

"These conditions are not peculiar to us; they are affecting the congregations and the resources of the majority of city churches. Nor do I write these words as a reproach or a denunciation, but as a simple statement of conditions.

"Unless our social customs change in a way that we have no reason to anticipate, the future of all our great city churches is problematical.

What'll Stop Sour Stomach?

They Act Quick and Relief Is Almost Immediate.

There are some things so exactly right that to mention them brings calm and repose. And to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets gives the stomach rest that kind of lift that makes you chuck up one hundred per cent. to the good. Practically in this true world those who suffer with sour stomach. You feel so meap that you actually hate yourself. And yet in a few minutes these tablets sweeten the stomach, arrest unnatural fermentation, start a powerful digestive action and prevent the formation of gas.

They are composed of only such digestants as are approved by the very best of physicians.

Real, live, progressive people want to be around where the activities of life embrace whatever discriminance dictate. If a house party serves a Welsh rarebit go to it. It isn't the rashest thing in the world to digest 'tis true, but what of it? Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will take care of you, keep your stomach in control and your dreams won't see an army of hobgoblins playing hobs with your nerves. Many physicians regularly prescribe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for the stomach disorders of patients who are ill with some constitutional malady. CASSIDY PUTS MORE HAMBURG STEAK TO TEST BY CHEMISTS

In his previous articles Mr. Cassidy has explained the use of the substance, Preservaline, and similar compounds used for Hamburg steak. These compounds consist in whole or in part, usually, of sodium sulphite. Eminent physicians have testified that sodium sulphite is a poison. They have also testified that the sodium sulphite does not kill the poisons in decomposing meat to which it may be applied. Mr. Cassidy tells something of the fashion in which this Preservaline is used in Boston.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

In three previous articles I have described Preservaline and its composition, and from testimony in a famous Hamburg steak case I showed how evil effects follow the use of this drug in food.

The effect of the drug upon the human body is to absorb the oxygen, or life-giving element, in the blood.

The effect of the drug on meat is to freshen its color, arrest or delay decomposition, and rejuvenate meat that is beginning to suffer from old age.

The effect of the drug on the meat, however, does not include killing the poisons in that meat, if it has commenced to decompose. That is why used on decomposing meat, it simply makes that meat APPEAR fresh, but the meat remains deadly poisons of decomposition still.

The effect of these poisons on the human body are dangerous in the extreme.

I have bought several samples of Hamburg steak in Boston. In addition to the samples I have myself, I have examined many others. My experience as a food inspector has made me able to detect with the unaided eye meat upon which this sulphite has been used.

Boston Steak Drugged.

As a result of almost three months' work in Boston, I say positively that over 50 per cent. of all Boston's hamburg steak is drugged, either with this sodium sulphite or with benzoate of soda.

Let me recite the records of my purchases:

January 8, at 2 in the afternoon, with my assistant, I entered the store at the corner of Broadway and C streets, South Boston, over which appears the name, "H. L. Taylor." I asked for chopped meat. There were two piles of meat on the counter. One was marked 8 cents, and the other 10. I bought the 10-cent kind. The package was wrapped in brown paper and handed to me. Upon examination I found it was stamped, in a red or brown ink, and so illegibly that I could not read all the words.

"This meat contains ——" per cent. sodium sulphite." I could not make out the percentage, nor the name of the dealer. The meat was submitted to chemist George W. Mites for analysis. He reported that it contained .04 per cent. sodium sulphite.

Complying With Law.

Now that dealer had complied with the law. His meat was stamped, though illegibly. Any court would probably have found that he had obeyed the law. My quarrel is not with the dealer, but with the law which allows the use of this poisonous drug.

January 14, at 2:15 in the afternoon, I went to the same store. My purpose was to test them—to see if they always marked cheap meats, or if they only marked them occasionally. I sent an office boy from the AMERICAN to make the purchase. He bought the ten-cent steak, and when he came out reported that a little placard reading, "Sodium sulphite—Cereal," was displayed over the meat on the counter. This package was not stamped in any way. Two portions of it to two chemists, Chemist George W. Mites reported a faint trace of sulphites; Chemists Charles Lawall of Philadelphia reported no sulphites.

Observe, the dealer had protected himself by declaring the presence of the drug, even though there was none of it in the meat.

Tested by Chemists.

Ten minutes later, the same boy bought a pound of Hamburg steak, for twelve cents, at Kee's Market, No. 221 Broadway, South Boston. This sample was duly marked or stamped in any way. Both chemists agreed that it contained no sulphites. That another dealer was honest?

At 2:40 that day, the boy bought a pound of Hamburg steak at that of J. Mathis & Co., No. 277 Broadway. There was no mark on the platter or on the package. Both the chemists named above found that the Hamburg contained sulphites. Chemist Lawall reporting .04 per cent.

January 18, at 2:55 p. m., I bought in the store of J. LaSalle, No. 101 Eliot street, a pound of Hamburg steak for twelve cents. This steak was sold to me from a box, marked on one end: "This meat contains 6-10 of 1 per cent. sodium sulphite. A. H. Atwood, No. 48 North street."

Mr. Atwood apparently sells this steak to butchers by the box. The box was about eighteen inches long, eight inches wide, and three or four inches deep.

The salesman stamped the paper in which he wrapped this steak, with a declaration like that on the box. The paper was so stamped that the letters were not visible when the steak was wrapped up. They were thrown when we unwrapped the package. Both chemists tested this steak, and both found sulphites as declared.

January 20, at 1:30 p. m., with my assistant, I went to the store of E. E. Gray & Co., at No. 154 Blackstone street. This place is called a "model market." Its counters and floors are clean, and well kept. Its meat is refrigerated. Its employes are neat and attentive.

Results Summarized.

I bought a pound of Hamburg steak for twelve cents. It was duly weighed, wrapped first in oil paper, then in brown paper and finally dropped in a bag and handed to me.

On the bag, printed under the name of the store, appeared these words: "This meat contains .6 of 1 per cent. benzoate of soda."

Both chemists tested the meat, and both found it contained benzoate as declared.

To summarize the results of these purchases—which were typical, and were selected to illustrate the various methods of marking and marketing this hamburg steak:

Six samples were bought. Three were marked as containing drugs; three were not. Four did contain drugs; one was doubtful, and one did not.

The significant thing to notice is the price in each case:

A ten cent sample was marked as drugged and did contain sulphites.

A ten cent sample was not marked and contained just a trace of sulphites, or perhaps none at all.

A nine cent sample was not marked, but DID contain sulphites, a clear violation of the law.

A twelve cent sample was marked and did contain sulphites.

Of these six samples, all but one was well within the law. I expect to show tomorrow that that law should be changed, and why.

AUBERT HERE FOR REHEARSALS OF "BLUE FOREST"

Louis Aubert, the French composer, is in Boston to direct the rehearsals for his first opera, "The Blue Forest," which is to be given its first production in this country on March 8 at the Boston Opera House. His first visit to this country will be brief.

Aubert is thirty-six and of the younger school of French composers, whose works are already familiar to Americans through the recent productions of Wolf-Ferrari and Charpentier.

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP---25-CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your hair! Danderine destroys dandruff and stops falling hair at once—Grows hair, we prove it.

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and abundant, you must use Danderine, because nothing else accomplishes so much for the hair.

Just one application of Knowlton's Danderine will double the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or scanty, Knowlton's Danderine, a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, will work a little wonder and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now? A 25-cent bottle will truly amaze you.

EDITOR GOUDIS LAUDS CASSIDY FOR FOOD WAR

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 26.—C. Houston Goudis, editor of the Fairest Magazine, "America's Pure Food Magazine," addressing an audience at the Pure Food show in Infantry Hall, paid a warm tribute to the work of Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, and other pure food pioneers. His topic was: "The Progress of the Pure Food Movement." After discussing Dr. Wiley's work, he said:

"The most noteworthy of the Pure Food trials food inspectors have been Harry P. Cassidy. Mr. Cassidy throws his honesty, his fearlessness, his energy, won for himself the reputation of being the most effective and intrepid food inspector of the country. This is the language of the great Dr. Wiley himself, who always followed the work of Cassidy with the greatest interest and appreciation.

"The cases of Dr. Wiley and Harry Cassidy are almost exactly parallel. Both were earnest, zealous, honest public servants, both were efficient, and both made enemies without number—and both were forced out of office by their enemies.

"Mr. Cassidy was removed by politics, and for a moment it seemed that the food movement had been dealt a knockout blow. But the changing character of the food fight opened up the idea of a scheme of larger usefulness, and he was retained by the Boston AMERICAN to investigate and expose the food frauds of that city.

"The fact that a large newspaper is ready for a food expert shows conclusively that the work of Dr. Wiley and Mr. Cassidy has borne fruit.

MAYOR LEARNS GOLF ON PALM BEACH LINKS

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26.—Mayor Fitzgerald is taking up golf. He says his ambition is to add the game to his list of other things at which he is an adept before he returns to Boston. For a tutor he has the best here—the best in the country. He is learning today under expert eyes of J. J. McDermott, the national golf champion.

The first thing the Mayor did after reading the Palm Beach Golf Club links was to take off his coat. Michael Brady of the Wollaston Golf Club, and Thomas McNamara, the noted Boston golfer, introduced the Mayor to McDermott. Then the Mayor took a club Brady handed him and swung it a few times to get the right idea and started off.

The Mayor said later:

"When they got me as far as four holes they tried to get me to take off my vest, roll up my sleeves and leave my straw hat behind. But I didn't then. I am not yet enough of a golfer to do little things like that bother me.

"I've got a game on with Amagen of New York, and I ought to trim him after all the professionals told me. But anyway, I'm learning the game."

HENRY O. GLIDDEN and the dancing girl poster which wins him the honors in Tech's annual competition for a poster to advertise the Tech show.

Henry O. Glidden of Cambridge has been announced winner of the competition for the poster to advertise Tech Show this year. Glidden is the son of C. H. Glidden, secretary of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and is a senior in architectural engineering at Tech.

Glidden is the institute cheer leader. He has drawn posters for four years, but has never before been successful. His poster this year is said by the engravers to be the best that has been handed in at a show competition. It was chosen from twelve fine drawings. It shows a dancing girl in a graceful pose and is done in bright colors. The girl is in blue, orange, white and black, with a blue sketch ground. Across the top are the words Tech Show, and on one side is the name of the show.

Rehearsals for the show have started and are in charge of Eugene Sanger of New York. More performances will be given this year than ever before. Besides the two Boston performances, trips will be made to Northampton, Providence and Malden.

'RAPHAEL,' ONCE FATHER'S AND ONLY A COPY

Notwithstanding a letter from William Howard Paine, a consulting engineer of Providence, who states that the "Boston famed atrocity is very sensitive to atmospheric changes and has never misled me," I have absolute faith in the strop and always consult it before accepting any engagements."

Wilson Says Razor Strop Is Barometer That Never Fails

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 26.—President-elect Wilson has tipped off the weather bureau that he has what he regards as the only infallible barometer. It is his razor strop, and every morning the little piece of leather whispers to him whether to take his raincoat and umbrella, or his frock coat and plug hat. "When I find that my razor does not glide smoothly over the strop," said the President-elect, "I know that it is going to rain, for my well-trained strop is very sensitive to atmospheric changes and has never misled me. I have absolute faith in the strop and always consult it before accepting any engagements."

Notwithstanding a letter from William Howard Paine, a consulting engineer of Providence, who states that the "Boston famed atrocity is very sensitive to atmospheric changes and has never misled me," I have absolute faith in the strop and always consult it before accepting any engagements."

He stated today, after hearing Mr. Paine's letter, that he knew of the Providence man's standing long ago, and that there was no foundation for them.

"There are about seventeen copies we know about," said Mr. Duffee, "and among them is a copy in Boston."

Mr. Paine's letter follows:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I note in your paper of yesterday an article on the finding of a genuine "Raphael" in a Boston house in Boston.

I believe that the picture referred to was owned by my father—the late George T. Paine—and hung in the parlor of our home at No. 216 Broadway, from my early youth, until the death of my father.

This picture was examined by experts at various times, and their opinion was always that it was a pale, but good "copy," by some unknown artist.

At the death of my father, this picture came into the hands of his housekeeper—Miss Bagley, a Jackson of Jamaica Plain, and the divorced wife of Charles A. Jackson, the artist.

The subsequent history of this picture is unknown to me personally, but I am quite sure that this picture was never "in the attic of an old house in Boston for over 100 years," or that it has any special value.

WILLIAM HOWARD PAINE.

RUN DOWN BY AUTO; AWARDED $16,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Morris Ghesin, owner of several drug stores, recovered a verdict yesterday for $16,000 in a suit against Cruice, Keelan & Company, dealers in automobiles. Gersin was run down by an auto and had both legs broken. One was subsequently amputated.

MANY TRIPS MADE TO AN OPERATING TABLE NEEDLESS

"I have already explained at length how it is that nervous debility can be dispelled by will power," says Dr. John Beanley Webb, the English specialist on this ailment.

"I will now proceed to convince you in some definite instance. Nervous debility can cause acute pains in the back, since the kidneys do not respond as quickly as they should to the commands of the nerves, and the fluid or body waste accumulates in them instead of being ejected. This causes congestion, stagnation and the organ gets diseased and painful.

"Depression of spirits, morbid imagination, dizziness and drowsiness are symptoms of nervous debility, when the over-exerted brain tries to do its work but becomes confused, causing the above mentioned symptoms.

"Broken and restless sleep is another symptom of nervous debility, caused by the brain being keyed up to such a pitch that it is forced to work whether it will sleep or not. In the same way I can quite easily show you how there is a cause for a pain or an ache which might not be caused solely by nervous debility. Of course, there are many cases in which it is really organic trouble, but my contention is that more often it is the result of an over-worked nervous system, and could easily be relieved by the new rational tonic, Tona Vita."

This tonic is being handled by all the up-to-date druggists in Boston.

COLLEGE AND CLUB MEN IN BIG MEET

By THOMAS J. HALPIN

Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.

HALPIN

The New England championship meeting will settle for all time the question of whether the college or club athletes are the stronger. The Boston Athletic Association has entered twenty-seven athletes. As the races are all scratch and as the winners will be the champions for the coming year, it will make all the athletes strive their hardest for the premier honors.

The fastest man on the Harvard team will enter the 300-yard run. This is William Barron, who has shown himself to be one of the greatest quarter-milers in college circles. Last year was his first in competition and it is due to this that he was not returned a winner in the intercollegiate meet.

BARRON OUT TO BEAT FREDDY BURNS.

Barron will go after Freddy Burns' scalp in the 300-yard race and he is determined to be returned the winner. Many of the students from the University across the Charles are quietly collecting all of their available money to lay it on the Harvard man's chances in this race. From the way he is traveling, it appears as though their confidence is not misplaced.

The Harvard entries in the 600-yard race consist of Huling, Lawless and Warren. Warren looks to be the most dangerous contender of the lot as he is a fine half-miler and a good sprinter. Huling is also a fine sprinter and should prove dangerous to the other contestants.

Harvard will have a tall list of men in the 40-yard dash. These will consist of Rollins, Abbott and Adams, all of whom have been showing up well in practice and welcome a chance to compete against O'Hara, Russell, Snow and Hiney, the Unicorn sprinters.

Harvard men will be well represented in the field events, for Brickley and Hardwick are entered in the jumps and the shotput, while there are eight entries in the high jump, with Moffat and Johnstone as the leading competitors. Johnstone will find a worthy opponent in Barwise, the Unicorn youth who has been cleaning up in all of the meets by his wonderful jumping, always clearing over six feet.

The Dartmouth team will be down for the relay race with the B. A. A. on the following day, and it is quite probable that several of the team will avail themselves of the opportunity and enter the different events. Besides Dartmouth there will be the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts, Brown, Holy Cross, Worcester Polytech, Amherst and many of the other colleges which will enter teams in this meet.

STAHL WAITS FOR FIRST SOX SQUAD

Jake Stahl has notified Red Sox headquarters from Hot Springs that he is looking for a husky squad of world's champions to meet him at the Hotel Eastman at the Arkansas resort about Sunday next, a week ahead of the main body of Sox. He expects that Bill Carrigan and "Heinie" Wagner will go together late this week and that the following will "blow into camp" about the same time: "Dutch" Leonard, the southpaw pitcher; George Foster, Grover Brant, Joe Martin, Al Walkins, Earl Moseley and Earl Ainsworth, recruits, together with Hugh Bedient, who is now counted as a veteran twirler.

MAY BAR ALLEN IN SCHOOL MEET

Whether Powder Point School of Duxbury will become a factor in the battle for second place at the B. A. A. school meet Saturday afternoon depends largely on whether the charges which one school threatens to make against George A. Allen, a star miler of that school, are substantiated. It is claimed that Allen is twenty-three years of age. He was a former member of the English High track team and is one of the best scholastic milers in New England.

ARLINGTON HIGH PICKED TO WIN HOCKEY CLASH

What promises to be the hardest fought schoolboy hockey game this season is scheduled to be played at the Boston Arena Friday evening, when the sevens of Arlington and Melrose High clash. This game will not only decide the winner of the Interscholastic League, but the honor of being rated as the championship seven of the State will go to the winner.

Arlington is the favorite, and, judging from its past performances, should prove an easy winner. Melrose, however, has always proved to be a hard, if not a hoodoo, opponent for Arlington. These teams met several weeks ago at the Arena, with a 1 to 1 result after forty minutes of stirring playing.

Arlington has the better team of the two and has made a very creditable showing on the ice this season. The seven has yet to be defeated, while in turn it has beaten all of its opponents with the exception of the team which it faces Friday evening for the title.

Arlington started the season with a veteran lineup, and from the start showed that it must be considered a championship combination. Captain George "Bulger" Lowe, playing coverpoint, is a worthy leader, and his fast playing has been one of the older features of Arlington's work. The boys are well drilled in the rudiments of the game, for they have been fortunate in having the benefit of the coaching of Forest Osgood, the clever B. A. A. player, and other stars at the ice game.

Although Melrose was forced to develop four new men for the hockey team this season the boys at the school proved to be born hockey stars, and from the start the team has made a good showing. Captain Clarence Cochrane had a difficult task in picking his team.

In the game against Arlington, several weeks ago, Melrose played very good hockey. In recent games the Melrose team has not played so well. The followers of Melrose are not worried a great deal, for they fully realize the recuperative powers of Melrose hockey players when it comes to playing a game against Arlington.

RED MEN TO HOLD SMOKE TALK TONIGHT

The Pawnee tribe of Redmen of Jamaica Plain has arranged a smoke talk for this evening in News Building Hall, Severna avenue, and a long program of boxing bouts and wrestling matches is on the card. A number of stage stars from several of the local playhouses have also agreed to take part in the entertainment, and a banner night is promised to the Redmen and their friends, several hundred of whom have been invited to attend.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

IN the office of the Boston National League Club today Secretary Nickerson made the interesting announcement that about seventeen of the club's players, new and old, were six feet or more tall. I was reaching for a pencil to take down the details, but Riley of the AMERICAN staff beat me to it, and doubtless the information will in due time be properly imparted in his clever column.

But what the public really wants to know is not how tall the players are, but how well they can play ball. Baseball Goliaths are all very well in their way, but often the baseball Davids are the straightest throwers and the best hitters. You can see fine-looking first-basemen on the street every day, and the side shows of every well-regulated three-ring circus always carry at least one grand first-sacker—on looks.

I have been elected to accompany the Boston Nationals on their Southern training trip, and it will be my duty to find out, if possible, how many of the team's tall men and short men and medium-sized men can play ball. The problem for management and players is how to get out of last place. Five days after these lines are read the candidates for positions on the team will be hard at work at Athens, Ga. What will the harvest be?

IT is now rumored that the Phillies are after Campbell, the Boston player who says he won't play ball with the Bostons any more. All right, let 'em have him. The Phillies are not exactly shy of outfielders, having Magee, Paskert and Cravath to count on as regulars. Mike Donlin was secured from Pittsburgh by the waiver route, but Sir Michael says he is through with baseball for good. He slowed down considerably last year. His legs are on their legs, as it were, and he says he has firmly made up his mind to cut out baseball and stick to the histrionic boards. Mike is now pretty well versed in vaudeville, and can pick up a living at it for some years to come.

Chance, is not enjoying the volume of publicity accorded the Giants, who are at Marlin Springs, Tex. The news that comes from Bermuda comes by mail, and thus far the bulletins have been very brief. There is a cable to Bermuda, but cable tolls are steep, and the New York newspapers evidently do not care to have their baseball news come that way. But Bermuda is only two days' sail from New York, and the mails ought to be good enough to keep the fans properly informed.

THAT Chance is earnest in his desire to play first base regularly is evident. He is working carefully with that end in view. He writes that he has been free from the severe headaches that troubled him so much last season. He feels no dizziness. He is much encouraged over the result of his training so far. He is convinced that Bermuda is an ideal spot for training, and predicts that his team will be in perfect physical condition when the American League season opens next April.

CHANCE'S plan to feed his athletes as college athletes at training table are fed is being followed out at the Bermuda camp. Pastry, coffee and liquor are barred. For breakfast the cook provides the players with steaks, chops, eggs, toast and weak tea. Lunch consists of soup and cold meat. At 6 o'clock dinner the men have roast beef, chicken, steaks, vegetables and rice pudding or custard.

Chance has framed a bedtime rule for 11 o'clock which he intends to enforce all the year.

McGraw has wired Rube Marquard, the "King of Ingrates," to report at once. Last heard of The Rube he was out on the coast trying his best to stir up interest in his art by all sorts of press agent stunts. According to a Spokane newspaper: "After missing two baseballs thrown from the top of the old National Bank Building, for which he was unmercifully guyed by a large crowd that gathered to see the performance, Rube Marquard, the Giant pitcher, offered $50 to anyone who could turn the trick. W. E. Crowfoot, a clerk in the bank, accepted the challenge and caught the first ball thrown from the roof. Rube then paid the $50 and quickly disappeared to escape the hoots and catcalls of the spectators."

MARQUARD can hardly be styled a popular player. News in baseball travels fast. The baseball public of the Pacific coast heard all about Marquard and the way he talked about McGraw long before he reached that part of the country. Those hisses were not for his failure to catch the ball, but for the way he has been talking about McGraw, the man who stuck to the pitcher at a time when everyone else in the world had deserted him.

Jackson College Girls Battle for Basketball Title

The interclass basketball game for the championship of Jackson College will be played this evening in the Jackson gymnasium between the freshmen and juniors. Only these two classes will be represented by teams because not enough girls from the other classes have been considered physically fit to stand the strain of the contest.

The sophomores and seniors have been considering the feasibility of organizing a joint team to challenge the winner of tonight's game.

The junior team will be led by Miss Leslie Hooper with Miss Emma Hulen as forwards, Miss Edith Cochran, centre; Miss Emily Eveleth and Miss Gertrude Dyer as guards.

The freshman team will be captained by Miss Avis J. Keir of Craftsbury, Vt., and she will play centre. Miss Ruth Burbank and Miss Adaline P. Huntington, both of Lynn, will play guards. Miss Lydia Piper of South Biddeford, Me., and Miss Lucile H. Chipman of Provincetown will be the forwards.

CAROLINA TARS WIN FROM FORT ANDREWS

The tars of the U. S. S. North Carolina won from the Fort Andrews five, champions of the Coast Artillery League, at basketball last night by the score of 36 to 21. Stone, the burly centre of the Jackies, shot nine pretty baskets from the floor. Tonight the North Carolina five plays the U. S. S. Rhode Island for the championship of the navy at the Vine Street Hall.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS STRIKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Mutiny threatens the peace of the International League. The players of Ed Barrow's circuit have banded together to thwart the $6,000 a month salary limit per club, which was recently adopted by the Class AA minor organizations. The rebel leaders, it was learned, have made overtures to the Baseball Players' Fraternity, hoping thereby to be in a better position to hold out for their demands.

Discord between players and club owners has reached a very acute stage, according to President James J. Lillis of Jersey City. Mr. Lillis is one magnate who stubbornly opposed such a low salary limit for the big minor leagues. He still believes the legislation a mistake, but is determined to observe it to the strictest letter.

"I expect all sorts of trouble," said Lillis. "So far, just eight of my players have signed, these including Manager Larry Schlafly. Pitchers Mains, Thompson and Doescher; Catcher Wells and Infielders Jack Knight and Purtell are also in line. A complete infield—Bradley, first base; Breen, second base; Myers, third base; Lonergan, shortstop; Outfielder Kelly and Pitchers McHale and Carroll are all 'holdouts.' I think I will be able to induce most of these to go to Bermuda with us on March 4. But the salary limit is bound to cause a lot of trouble, not only in my ranks, but in rival clubs as well."

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

By RILEY.

THE Red Sox magnates seem as much concerned over the lack of a tried substitute for "Heinie" Wagner's place as they are over the report that Duffy Lewis will quit to take a job as baseball coach at Leland Stanford University. McAleer and Stahl are satisfied with Olaf Henriksen as a capable successor to Lewis. They do not know whether Carlstrom or Scott, the recruits, will make good if called upon to step into Wagner's shoes. So they are eager to engage a veteran, and you may look for a trade any of these days, with the prospects of Bobby Wallace of St. Louis being the man most likely to land in Boston, if such a deal can be engineered.

* * *

THE request for waivers on Clyde Engle has nothing to do with this proposition, according to the Sox bosses. Engle is the best all-around substitute in the game, and it is not likely that McAleer would swap him unless he received some excellent material in return. He would not need waivers to trade him with the St. Louis Browns, so that the only way that waivers on Engle could affect a deal for Wallace would be through a three-cornered trade in which a team in some other league figured. And it is hardly likely that the American League would let Engle go unless Johnson's circuit received something big in return.

* * *

AT Red Sox headquarters it is intimated that the request for waivers on Engle did not foreshadow any deal but was a formality in preparation for some possible future transaction, because Engle is the most valuable trading material available on the Red Sox list. The Sox magnates regretted that the fact had become known. "We asked waivers on Engle just as we have on scores of others before, not because we have any definite notion of letting him go, and surely not because we belittle his value, because we regard him as a remarkably capable and valuable man," said one of them. "But we wanted to be in a position to trade if any advantageous trade came up."

* * *

THE Sox are keen to win this year's pennant. While Engle is an excellent substitute almost anywhere, he does not fill the bill at shortstop where, in case of injury to Wagner, the damage might lose the flag. The Sox are training new men for Wagner's place, but they do not count on any of them "showing" this year, and they will be satisfied with nothing less than a skilled veteran. Of course, it is well known in baseball circles that Wallace is the man McAleer would most like to have.

* * *

THEREFORE, it is possible that Engle might figure, some way, in a deal for Wallace, McAleer and Stahl figuring on Janvrin and Ball as substitutes for the rest of the infield. Any time that the Sox ever offered Engle for trade, you would see a wholesale clamor for "Hackenschmidt's" services. So Clyde should worry about the waiver story.

* * *

THE Boston Nationals would be delighted to acquire Engle, for instance. "We admire Engle," said one of the Pilgrim magnates, "and believe he would be a tower of strength to us if we could get him. But we do not see any chance of the American League letting him out."

* * *

ENGLE and Manager Stallings of the Pilgrims are mutual friends and admirers, Engle having played under Stallings on the New York Yankees. Mrs. Stallings and Mrs. Engle are close friends. Incidental to this and to the above story, an episode of the world's series was told today for the first time. President and Mrs. James E. Gafney and Manager and Mrs. Stallings of the Pilgrims, with Mrs. Engle, occupied a box at the last and deciding game of the world series at Fenway Park. In the tenth inning, with the score 2 to 1 in favor of New York and the series apparently lost to Boston, Engle was sent in to start the last stand at bat for the Sox and hoisted the memorable fly that Snodgrass dropped. When he went to the plate, however, most Bostonians had about given up hope of winning and most National Leaguers were satisfied that the championship was won, among them the Pilgrim party.

The Gafneys and Stallings were joshing Mrs. Engle, who had defended the American League single-handed all afternoon against four.

"Well, I'm a Jonah, anyway," she finally said, discouraged, "and I'm not going to stay here. We're just time to catch the 5 o'clock for New York."

Mrs. Engle was so dismayed that she could not bear to stay and see what happened to her husband. The party hurried out to a taxicab. Just as they stepped in they heard the triumphant cheer that went up when Engle boosted the fly and Snodgrass dropped it, but they were in such a hurry that they never knew what had happened until they reached New York at 10 o'clock and bought an extra edition of the New York Journal.

Then, for the first time in the day, Mrs. Engle had the laugh on the other four, and Gafney had forthwith to buy a supper for five.

* * *

RETURNING to Wallace, the possibility of obtaining Wallace some day depends upon the fact that the ex-manager of the Browns would like to get away from playing as subordinate where he once bossed the job, and Stovall could be induced to dispose of him if he received enough in return. As for Duffy Lewis, the Sox do not see where Duffy can possibly make as much money coaching at Leland Stanford as he could playing left field at Fenway Park and they still expect him to show up before the gong sounds.

* * *

"IF, HOWEVER, Lewis prefers to stay on the coast," says President McAleer, "I wish him the best of good luck and hope he will live long and prosper."

TOMMY O'KEEFE TO MEET WOOD AT SALEM A. A.

By JACK CONWAY.

JOHNNY MOONEY has proved again that he is one of the leading matchmakers in the East. He has signed Bay Wood, the Fall River lightweight, who more than held his own with Battling Nelson at New Bedford on Washington's Birthday, to meet Tommy O'Keefe, the clever Philadelphia lightweight, in the main bout of twelve rounds at the opening show of the Salem A. A. on next Monday night. This contest should be replete with excitement.

* * *

ALEX McLEAN has mapped out a hard campaign for Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea. Gallant has been signed to meet George Alger of Cambridge in a twelve-round bout at Lowell on Friday evening, while he will journey to Manchester, N. H., on next Tuesday night, where he will battle "Young" McDonough of that city. The Chelsea youth will probably meet Bay Wood at New Bedford on the following week. Gallant has already started training for these matches and he is confident that he will win.

* * *

THE bout between Steve Kennedy and Matty Baldwin, which was scheduled to be decided at Lawrence a week from tomorrow night, has been called off by Jim Crilley, manager of Kennedy. Kennedy has a bad cold, and Crilley believes that it would be foolishness for him to permit his protege to meet Baldwin under such conditions.

* * *

"GUNBOAT" SMITH will have to perform better than he has ever done before if he is to take the measure of Bombardier Wells, whom he meets in Madison Square Garden next month. Wells is one of the most skilful heavyweights in the world, and he will probably be made a topheavy favorite. Besides being a clever boxer, the English champion can hit hard, as one Al Palzer will bear testimony.

* * *

EDDIE SHEVLIN, the Roxbury boxer who was recently appointed an athletic instructor at Dartmouth College, is making good in his new position. Eddie is a natural born athlete and is a regular wizard in the gymnasium. Besides being a sterling athlete, the Roxbury lad is also a gentleman. He is able to make friends very quickly and what is of still more importance he retains their friendship. Eddie says that he has been benefited wonderfully by the instructions of Dr. Bowker, who is in charge of the Dartmouth gymnasium. Dr. Bowker, by the way, has few equals as a teacher of gymnastics.

Many New Nines on Wesleyan List of Games for 1913

Wesleyan's program of baseball games for this season contains nineteen games, and is a much stronger schedule than last season, as some new teams are to be met.

The new teams this season are Columbia University, Lafayette College, Tufts and Amherst Colleges.

P. J. Noonan, formerly of the St. Louis National League team, will coach again this season. Captain Wright of New York will call the candidates for first practice the early part of next week.

The schedule for 1913:

April 12, Yale at New Haven; April 16, Brown at Providence, R. I.; April 18, Bowdoin, home; April 19, Rutgers at New Brunswick; April 26, Amherst at Amherst; April 30, Springfield Training School, home; May 3, Williams, home; May 8, Lafayette, home; May 9, Tufts, home; May 10, Trinity at Hartford, Ct.; May 14, Columbia at New York; May 16, Norwich University, home; May 17, open; May 21, Holy Cross at Worcester; May 24, Trinity at Hartford; May 30, Trinity, home; May 31, Fordham, home; June 14, Williams at Williamstown; June 17, Alumni, home.

BOXING BILL'S FATE WILL BE KNOWN SOON

The fate of the pending bill to legalize boxing in this State will probably be known within the next twenty-four hours. It is reported that the Committee on Legal Affairs has given the bill more consideration than any former committee has. If the bill becomes a law, all decisions will be made known through a bulletin issued under the seal of the commission based on the reports of inspectors assigned by the commission to attend all bouts. This is considered the main feature of the bill.

SOCCER STARS HAVE OUTDOOR PRACTICE

With Soldiers Field swept by a Winter wind, the Harvard soccer players under Captain E. L. Barron held their last Spring practice yesterday, the only apparent "Spring" being the enforced activities of the barelegged boys to keep warm. One hundred yards away a hockey scrimmage was going on within the Stadium rink.

B. C. ARRANGES LONG LIST OF BALL BATTLES

Within a few weeks the Boston College High School team will start baseball practice. The team this year is composed mostly of new and untried men, as all but the outfield and a pitcher from last season teams have either graduated or left school.

The outfielders from last year's team who are among the candidates this year are Gildea, Phelan and O'Connor. Bobbie Gill is the most prominent candidate for the box position.

New men out for the team are: Splaine, formerly of Dedham High; Kearns, from Natick High, and Wholley, who was elected to captain Boston Latin this season, but is not registered at B. C. Cotter, O'Connor, McCarthy, Russell and Sweeney are also promising candidates.

The schedule consists of eighteen games, seven of them being played at Locust-street grounds, which will be the prep school's home grounds this season.

The schedule:

April 5—Melrose High at Melrose.
April 9—Pending.
April 12—Medford High at Medford.
April 15—South Boston High at Locust street.
April 19—South Framingham High at South Framingham.
April 23—Everett High at Everett.
April 26—Pending.
April 29—Allen School at West Newton.
May 1—St. John's Prep at Danvers.
May 3—High School of Commerce at Locust street.
May 6—Dorchester High at Locust street.
May 10—Gloucester High at Gloucester.
May 14—Pending.
May 17—Powder Point at Duxbury.
May 20—English High at Locust street.
May 24—Beverly High at Beverly.
May 27—Boston Latin at Locust street.
May 30—St. John's Prep at Locust street.
June 4—Brookline High at Locust street.
June 5—East Weymouth at East Weymouth.
June 7—Concord High at Concord.

Everett High Nine to Play 24 Games on the Diamond

Baseball will soon get its start at Everett High, and Coach Cleo O'Donnell is confident that he will develop a suburban league winner this season. A captain has not been elected as yet, but the men will be called together next week and a leader will be picked.

Faculty Manager Everett S. Marks has been busy completing a schedule and announces the following dates:

April 5, Boston School of Fine Arts at Everett; 12, Rindge Tech at Cambridge; 16, Weymouth at Everett; *19, Medford at Everett; *26, Melrose at Everett; 30, Dorchester at Everett.

May *3, Somerville at Everett; 7, English High at Everett; *10, Melrose at Melrose; 14, Boston Latin at Everett; *17, Somerville at Somerville; *21, Melrose at Melrose; *24, Medford at Medford; 28, Cambridge H. and L. at Everett; *30, Malden at Everett; 31, High School of Commerce at Everett.

MELLODY OUTCLASSED IN NEW YORK BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Honey Mellody, the former welter-weight champion, was badly beaten by Harry Price of Australia in a ten-round bout at the Brooklyn Beach A. C. The Boston boxer was all in at the finish.

'TED' MEREDITH IS TO ENTER TITLE GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—All doubt as to whether "Ted" Meredith, the world's greatest half-miler would compete in the American track and field championships was put to rest when the Daily Pennsylvanian issued the following:

Announcement has been made here that the University of Pennsylvania would have an entry in the A. A. U. championships, to be held at Madison Square Garden, New York, on March 6. J. E. Meredith, '16, has signified his intention to compete in the 600-yard run at this meet.

This will be one of the fastest races of the year, as five of the best runners in the country have been entered for the event. Meredith's strongest opponents will be Sheppard and Halpin, two of the greatest runners in the East, who have been consistent winners in the distance races at the New York and Boston meets, and his work against these men will be watched with interest.

B. C. SWIMMERS BEAT MALDEN HIGH BOYS

The Boston College High School swimming team made its first appearance in the water yesterday afternoon, when it defeated the team from Malden High at the Cabot-street gym in a fast and interesting meet. The feature of the meet was the plunge of Hawe of B. C. High for distance, he covering 56 ft. 6 in.

The Mystery of Mary

The Story of a Strange Disappearance and of Love Triumphant

By GRACE LIVINGSTON HILL LUTZ

Copyright, 1913, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

THE little woman paused, too, eyeing the girl cautiously, then began in eager voice:

The girl darted nervously, a cold chill of fear coming over her. Was this woman a detective?

"I heard what that awful woman said to you, and I saw how you acted. You must be a good girl or you wouldn't have talked to her that way. I suppose I'm doing a dangerous thing, but I can't help it. I believe you're all right, and I'm going to try you, if you'll take general housework. I need somebody right away, for I'm going to have a dinner party to-morrow night, and my girl left me this morning."

The kind tone in the midst of her troubles brought tears to the girl's eyes.

"Oh, thank you!" she said as she brushed the tears away. "I'm a stranger here, and I have never before been among strangers this way. I'd like to come and work for you, but I wouldn't know much housework, I'm sure. I never did it, and I wouldn't know how."

"That you cook a little? I could teach you my ways."

Ignorant of Cooking

"I don't know the least thing about cooking. I never cooked a thing in my life."

"What a pity! What was your mother thinking about? Every girl ought to be brought up to know a little about cooking even if she does have some other employment."

"My mother has been dead a good many years. The years between were nine, but the girl tried to assist. "I could help you with your dinner party," she went on. "That is, I know all about setting the tables and arranging the flowers and favors. I could print the cards for you —I've done it many a time. And I could wait on the table. But I wouldn't cook even an oyster."

"Oh, place-cards!" said the little woman, her eyes brightening. She caught at the word as though she had descried a new star in the firmament.

"I wish I could have them. They cost so much to buy. I might have my waste-ground come and help with the cooking, my cook's pretty well, and I could help her beforehand, but she couldn't wait on table, to save her life.

"I wonder if you know much about menus. Could you help me fix out the courses and say what you think I ought to have, or don't you know about that? You see, I have this very particular company coming, and I want to have things nice. I don't know them very well.

"My husband has business coming with them and wants them invited, and of all times for Betty to leave this was the worst! She had an awful spree and fell into a tone of equality with the strange girl.

"I should like to help you," said the girl, "but I must find somewhere to stay before night, and if I find a place I must take it. I just came to the city this morning, and have nowhere to stay over night."

"I suppose my husband would think I was crazy to do it," she said aloud, "but I just can't help trusting you.

An Offer Accepted

"Suppose you come and stay with me today and tomorrow, and help me out with this dinner party, and I'll look after overnight at my house and sleep in Lia's room. If I like your work I'll give you a recommendation to a friend.

"You can't get a good place anywhere without it; her from the office, I'll send it. A recommendation ought to be worth a couple of days' work to you. I'd pay you something besides, but I really can't afford it, for the washerwoman charged a dollar and half a day, and she's going out to cook, but if you get your board and lodging and a reference that ought to pay you."

"You are very kind," said the girl. "I shall be glad to do that."

"When will you come? Can you go with me now, or have you got to go after your things?"

"I haven't any things but these," she said simply, "and perhaps you will not think I am fine enough for your dinner party. I have a little money. I could buy a white apron. My trunk is a good many miles away, and I was in desperate straits and had to leave it."

"H'm! A stepmother, probably," thought the kindly little woman. "Poor child! She doesn't look as if she was used to roughing it. If I could only hold on her and train her she might be a treasure, but there's no telling what John will say. I won't tell him anything about her, if I can help it, till the dinner is over."

Aloud she said: "Oh, that won't be necessary. I've got a white apron I'll lend you —perhaps I'll give it to you if you do your work well. Then we can fit up some kind of a waitress's cap out of a lace-edged handkerchief, and you'll look fine. I'd rather do that and have you come right along home with me, for everything is all alive and seems. Betty went off without washing the breakfast dishes. You can wash dishes, can you?"

"Why, I can try," laughed the girl, the ridiculousness of her present situation suddenly getting the better of other emotions. And so they got into a car and were whirled away into a pretty suburb. The woman, whose name was Mrs. Hart, lived in a common little house filled with imitation Oriental rugs and cheap furniture.

The two went to work at once, bringing order out of the confusion that reigned in the tiny kitchen.

In the afternoon the would-be waitress sat down with a box of watercolors to paint dinner cards, and as her skillful brush brought into being dainty landscapes, lovely flowers and little brown birds she pondered the strangeness of her lot.

"The Real Thing"

The table the next night was laid with exquisite care, the scant supply of flowers having been used to best advantage, and everything showing the touch of a skilled hand. The long hours that Mrs. Hart had spent puckering her brow over the household department of fashion magazines helped her to recognize the fact that in her new maid she had what she was pleased to call "the real thing."

She sighed regretfully when the guest of honor, Mrs. Rhinehart, spoke of the deftness and pleasant appearance of her hostess' waitress.

"Yes," Mrs. Hart said, swelling with pride, "she is a treasure. I only wish I could keep her."

"She's going to get married, I suppose. They all do when they're good," sympathized the guest.

"No, but she simply won't do cooking, and I really haven't work enough for two servants in this little house."

The guest sat up and took notice.

"You don't mean to tell me that you are letting a girl like that slip through your fingers? I wish I had known about her. I have spent three days in intelligence offices. Is there any chance for me, do you think?"

Then did the little woman prove that she should have had a "V" in her name, for she burst into a most voluble account of the virtues of her new maid, until the other women were ready to take her on the spot.

The result of it all was that "Mary" was summoned to an interview with Mrs. Rhinehart in the dining room, and engaged at $4 a week, with considerable comfort, and her uniforms furnished.

The next morning Mrs. Hart gave her a dollar bill and told her that he appreciated the help she had given them, and wanted to show her appreciation for it.

She thanked him graciously and took the money with a kind of awe. Her first earnings! It would be strange to think that she had really earned some money, she who had always had all she wanted without lifting a finger.

She went to a store and bought a hair brush and a few little things that she felt were necessities, with a 50-cent straw telescope in which to put them.

Then, with her modest luggage, she entered the house of Mrs. Rinehart and ascended to the room on the third floor, in which were a cot and a washstand, a cracked mirror, one chair and one window.

Mrs. Rhinehart had planned that the waitress should room with the cook, but Mrs. Hart had insisted that she must have a room alone, no matter how small, and that had compromised on this unusual, ill-furnished spot.

As she took off the felt hat she wondered what the woman would think if she could see her now, and she brushed a deck of dust gently from the felt, as if in apology for its humble surroundings. Then she smoothed her hair, put on the apron and cap, which she had worn, and descended to her new duties as maid in a fashionable home.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Girl Captain of the Pickets" Tells Remarkable Life Story

By PHILIP J. HALVOSA.

The striking garment workers call her the "Girl Captain of the Pickets." Her real name is non-strike times, is Ida Temkin. She was born at Vitebski, Russia, eighteen years ago.

"Captain Ida" is a recent convert to trade unionism. This comes from the fact that she landed in this country only three years ago. From that time on, starting from the day she began to learn the English language, the story of her life reads like a romance of early pioneer days.

Miss Temkin does not pose as a leader. She goes even further, and places the usefulness of an active member above that of any leadership. Her explanation is that a trade union depending upon any one set of leaders for its success goes out of existence when its so-called leaders die. She stands for class solidarity, coupled with energy of active membership. Here is the story of her life, as told in her own simple language:

My name is Ida Temkin. I was born at Vitebski, Russia, eighteen years ago and have lived in this country almost three years.

My father was a tradesman at home, but we have heard so much of American freedom that we decided to emigrate, and I came over first.

A friend of the family sent me a ticket, paying $15 in cash and signing a note for $65, the remainder of my passage money.

This advance money I later returned, paying him back in weekly instalments of $1, although I got only $3 a week when starting to work.

It was very hard at first, especially during the slack seasons, because my wages were so low, I often longed for my girlhood home.

Thousands of miles away from my father and mother and my seven brothers and sisters I sometimes wondered how a girl could be free while working for $3 a week and paying $1 of that back for her passage money every week.

But I was determined not to give up the fight, and managed to struggle along until my wages were advanced, attending night school in the meantime to learn the language.

Three years doesn't seem very long, when one speaks of time, but a whole lifetime's experience can be crowded into even that brief period when one starts to work in a strange land for $3 a week and is compelled to pay $80 for her passage money over the seas, while trying to save enough to bring the remainder of the family over also.

O, it was so hard, at first! If it was not for kind friends from my own country I could not possibly have stood it. Through them I was able to secure board and lodging for $2 a week. The other dollar I paid to the ticket broker. There was nothing left over for clothing or recreation until my wages were advanced.

Day after day, however, I gradually acquired a little more skill and speed at the machine I was working on for a Hanover street firm of vest makers, working ten hours a day and attending night school to learn the language of the country, until finally I was given a half-dollar raise. After that life became easier, for I eventually managed to command almost $7 a week the year round, after allowing for the dull seasons.

Your American-born girls would find it hard to credit the joy I felt last August, when, my own back passage money paid, I got together money enough to send for my father and my eldest sister. This was made possible by getting their tickets through a broker, who sold me the tickets on the instalment plan.

With father and sister here, and all three of us at work earning money to pay off our indebtedness to the ticket broker, I began to look forward to the time we could send for my mother and the rest of the family. Perhaps it was this longing to have them with me that led me to join the union, for my sister only gets $4 a week and father doesn't make much more than Russian wages at his calling here.

My long struggle, and the lonely nights alone when mother and I have made me think more deeply of such things than the average girl. Or perhaps, 't may be that working girls today are more progressive than their sisters in the domestic life of long ago.

Why, I used to ask myself, should a girl do a man's work for a child's pay? What guarantee did girls have that, having dragged the wages of their men comrades down to their own level, their earnings would not be cut down still lower? How could any girl hope to fight the system alone, outside the union of her calling?

Then came the vote for a general strike, a strike called to give us girl toilers equal pay for equal work, a fifty-hour week, a living wage and decent sanitary conditions. After that came picket duty, and very excitingly, will come the joy of winning.

Miss Temkin has done picket duty for the strikers every day since the strike started. At times she has been the only girl on duty before a "struck" shop, although usually accompanied by other women and girls. It is a rare thing to find her at strike headquarters and she never attempts to address the daily mass meetings held at No. 724 Washington street.

An accomplished linguist, however, speaking Hebrew, Russian and English with equal facility, she has proven to be a valuable worker on the picket line. Her arguments in favor of collective action by the workers have induced many to join in with the strikers, and that at times when the more experienced men pickets could not secure the desired results.

Nor is that work unaccompanied by danger, for "Captain Ida" was the only girl on picket duty in East Boston last week when a clash occurred with the police, some hangers-on and the strikers, that bordered on a riot.

Several of the strike pickets were injured at that time, and every window in the shop under surveillance was smashed in the melee that followed. But the "Girl Captain of the Pickets" never flinched, and it is said she "captured two of the enemy," carrying them away in triumph to strike headquarters, where they were later obligated into the union.

The Social Calendar

Society Happenings Tomorrow

Boston College annual reunion and "home night" in college gymnasium; evening.

Copley Society's Japanese plum blossom festival in Copley Hall.

Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants observes 292d anniversary of the establishment of [illegible] in Plymouth; afternoon from 3 to 5 in society rooms, No. 53 Mt. Vernon street.

Mrs. Waldo Richards gives reading at home of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, No. 261 Clarendon street.

Mrs. Maude M. Holbach of London lectures in salon of Copley-Plaza on "The Austrian Tyrol and the Dolonites"; 11 a. m.

Y. M. C. A. Law School, Class 1915, dinner at Copley Square Hotel; 7 p. m.

Of all the society events scheduled for tomorrow and tomorrow night of the reunion and "old home" night of Boston College may well be said to be the centre of interest. It probably will be the last reunion within the walls of the old college building on James street, in the South End, for the new building at College Heights, Newton, is expected to be in readiness to receive the first classes in the Spring.

There are scores of Boston College alumni in Boston; there are scores more scattered all through Massachusetts, and who can get to Boston will be there for the reunion. It is to be held in the gymnasium.

The Rev. Thomas I. Gasson, president of the college, plans to have the college the social centre of its alumni. The "home night" this year may be said to be his crowning achievement in this direction.

Many men well known in the social life of Boston and the State will be present. The sons of Boston College are seen in every walk of life. Everywhere they are prominent. They are all loyal to their alma mater, and a large gathering is expected.

Many well known Boston society women will be present tomorrow at the Joy-necessary Plum Blossom festival of the Copley Society in Copley Hall. The date originally set was Tuesday, February 25, but, as the ball had already been secured for this date, it became necessary to postpone it until tomorrow.

There has been a large sale of tickets and the event seems crowned with success even before the doors open for the first time. Mrs. S. J. Mixter, chairman of the committee in charge, is much pleased with the interest which is being manifested in every detail. Mrs. Ernest Morse is at the head of the costume committee. The costumes promise to be most brilliant.

The Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants tomorrow will celebrate the two hundred and thirty-second anniversary of the establishment of military orders at Plymouth. On February 27, 1621, Myles Standish was elected captain and on that date military orders were established.

The celebration of the event is in charge of the committee on At Home Days, consisting of Mrs. Walter F. Ayers, Mrs. Lorenzo D. Baker, Jr., Mrs. Henry B. Hancock, Mrs. Charles H. McIntyre and Mrs. George A. Wentworth. The committee will receive members and their guests from 3 to 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the society's rooms, No. 53 Mount Vernon street.

A number of society people are expected to attend the reading to be given by Mrs. Waldo Richards tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, No. 261 Clarendon street. There are several subscribers to the reading. Among these are Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Miss Sarah Holland Adams, Mrs. Jane H. Read, Mrs. Frederick T. Bradbury, Mrs. Charles Van Brunt, Mrs. Benjamin S. Calef, Mrs. J. Sumner Draper, Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch, Mrs. Frederic C. Hood, Mrs. William H. Hill, Miss Elizabeth G. Hough-ton, Mrs. Dyer Jordan, Mrs. William L. McKee, Mrs. Elliott W. Pratt, Mrs. Henry E. Raymond, Mrs. Charles A. Stone, Mrs. George H. Swift, Mrs. C. Linzee Tilden, Mrs. Joseph H. White and Mrs. Winthrop G. Winslow.

Mrs. Richards will read Lady Gregory's "The Workhouse Ward."

A lecture of interest to women will be given in the salon of the Copley-Plaza tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock by Mrs. Maude M. Holbach of London. She will speak on "The Austrian Tyrol and the Dolonites." The lecture will be illustrated by pictures taken by Mr. and Mrs. Holbach during their journeyings in out-of-the-way places of Europe.

Class 1915 of the Y. M. C. A. Law School will hold its dinner tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock at the Copley Square Hotel.

The Bookkeeping Machine

Does all the Bookkeeping detail; writes in plain machine type, always uniform; heads up the accounts, enters the date, items, amounts—does it in the standard loose leaf binders without removing sheets from the book—or on card records.

Does all the adding as it makes the entries.

Proves all the work as it goes along and eliminates the old-fashioned worry and bother of hunting for mistakes — When the last entry is made for the month the work is finished and the proven (trial) balance is waiting to be taken off.

USEFUL THUMB

"I SEE," said Dick Swiveller, to his son, "that this man Kubelik, the fiddler, has insured his hands for one hundred pounds. Only two thousand and two hands at that! Why, say, I got one thumb that's got you and your brother through more'n fifty scrapes, and I'm swell ole's I'm twenty years, an' it's still good for the price of them, before I die. Whaddo ya' know about that?"

"Which thumb, pop?" asked young Dicks respectfully.

"Right thumb—the one I press down on the seam with th' pen," said Dick proudly. "I never weighs less'n a pound, an' I'd betcha I've sold twenty thousand times since I been th' business. An' I never insured it, at that."

Some Character Sketches of Frolicsome Dan Cupid

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

By Nell Brinkley

Locked out in the cold, Cupid pleads to be taken into your heart, and when he does win your pity he becomes master instead of suppliant.

"Love's a fiddler, life's a dance," and before all is over and done with we must dance to the tune he plays, be it merry or sad—we all must dance.

My Lady is a wonder and a mystery to everybody but Cupid. Sometimes her frills and fixing stump even the wise little god, and here he is caught in the act of examining the accessories to the toilet and the first aids to beauty on My Lady's dressing table.

And many a time and oft Cupid sits with "the gloom upon him." He has the weight of the world upon his shoulders and can't always make things go right.

His best role is that of "Old Doc Cupid." This is where he really shines. His prescription is love—ever more love—for all ailments.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

DEEREST luv, sed Ma to Pa last nite, this evening there is a splendid gentelman & his wife cumming up to the house. I know you wud be glad to meet them. They go all round the country lecturing on Kindness, sed Ma. It wud bring the tears to pure eyes, Ma sed, to hear them speek about Kindness.

I guess it wud bring the tears to my eyes to have sumbody stop speeking about kindness & slip me a little of it instead, sed Pa. I have had so many kicks in the shins lattly that my legs look like ears of corn. I hoap pure frends wont expeck me to be exacktly what you wud call a silent-tree audienge, beekause I aint in the mood. I got aued twice today, sed Pa.

By who? sed Ma.

Dount say "by who" sed Pa. Say "by whom." By lawyers, Pa sed, lawyers. The auing kids, sed Pa. Bless thare deer harts, they mak things so clear & smooth for you. Wen you are blundering around in the darkness they bring you down to a nice britte sunshiny court room so you can see the point they are trying to maik. I hoap you wont ask pure Kindness frends to stay long.

Just then Mister and Missus Blackstone caim. They seemed like awful nice peepul. Both of them was kind of fat, but Pa is kind of fat too, & he has a kind hart the same as Ma sed they had.

I thought it looked kind of punk beefore I caim in, sed Pa. I implied it looked as if Winter had set in for fair. The Wether Man never gits things rite anyway, Pa sed. If he was keeping house up in the North Pole he wud call it the Pittipines.

Oh, my dear sir, sed Mister Blackstone, you shud be kind to the Wether Man. Always be kind and genteel to everybody. It is so much easier and life is so short. My wife will recite you a pome I rote last week to that effeck, sed Mister Blackstone.

Does yure wife recaite yure poetry? sed Pa. Mine always laffs at mine, but she wuddent recaite it if you offered her a new sailor made sute.

My wife recaites mine, sed Mister Blackstone. She is compelled to, I might say, by the compelling grandeur of the lines. Listen to this one.

Then Missus Blackstone recaited.

Always be kind, for being kind
Is the grandest trait of the human mind.
If you saw a man that was whipping a horse
You would speak to him very firm, of course,
And if again that horse he did lace
You would slap that teamster in the face.

Married Life the Third Year

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Helen Calls at Warren's Office and His Stenographer Resents Her interference.

"OUT nine!" called the elevator man, as the car stopped with a sickening lurch, and he clanged open the iron door.

Helen stepped out and turned to the left down the long marbled hall. She came so rarely to Warren's office that the atmosphere of the great office building always impressed her.

"Howe & Eldridge, Stocks and Bonds," "R. L. Drake & Co., Suburban Real Estate," "W. J. Barnes & Son, Insurance," read the lettering on the ground glass doors, from behind which came the sound of clickering typewriters. Then—027, "Warren E. Curtis, Counselor at Law."

There was no one in the front office, but as Helen closed the door, Miss Perry, the stenographer, appeared from the room beyond.

"I'm sorry Mr. Curtis isn't here," stiffly, as she recognized Helen, "but he said he'd be back by three."

"Then I'll wait," passing in to his private office with a little air of proprietorship, which the stenographer was quick to resent.

Helen felt her resentment without realizing its cause. She had been here only a few times, yet she knew this girl did not like her.

Business Disorder

Miss Perry returned to her typewriter in the back room. Helen took the revolving chair before Warren's desk and gazed around with the intent interest which she always felt in everything here.

While the littered confusion of the place outraged her sense of order, yet there was in it all an atmosphere of busy, important activity that always thrilled her.

The strewn desk, the overflowing pigeon holes, the shelves of letter files, the safe with "W. E. Curtis" lettered over the heavy doors—all this was part of Warren's life in which she had no share. With eager interest she took in every detail.

A mass of letters and papers covered the desk, the telephone was on one drawn out leaf, some unopened mail on the other. There seemed no space left to write. How could he work among such disorder? Helen longed to straighten and dust, yet feared she might mislay something.

But his stenographer, she thought indignantly, why could she not keep his desk in order? She knew where everything belonged. Why did she not file these letters, and clean out those crowded pigeon holes and put a fresh blotter in place of this ink-stained one, and wash out the inkstand, blackened with dust and dried ink?

If Warren would not tell her to do these things, she would! With determined courage Helen went into the back room.

"Miss Perry, would you like me to send you down some dust clothes? Mr. Curtis' desk looks so disorderly and dusty. I'm sure he'd appreciate it if you'd straighten it up for him."

"Mr. Curtis doesn't wish me to touch his desk," returned Miss Perry icily. "He can never find anything if anyone else puts it away."

"But surely you file the letters?"

"Miss Perry, would you like me to send me," returned Miss Perry, with unmistaken asperity.

Helen's Jealousy

Helen went back into Warren's office with a feeling almost of dislike for this girl. As she sat down again at the desk, the phone beside her buzzed imperatively. She took down the receiver, but put it back as she heard the stenographer answer it from the extension outside.

"No, Mr. Curtis isn't in, but I'm expecting him every moment. * * * Hyde & Bennett? I think he heard from them today. * * * Hold the wire.

Miss Perry hurried in and with an officious air looked through a pile of letters on the desk before Helen, then switched out again and back to the phone.

"No, I don't see it. Mr. Curtis may have it with him. * * * Yes, I'll have him call you up—Very well. Good-bye.

This incident served only to increase Helen's vague jealousy of Miss Perry's familiarity with so much of Warren's life, of which she knew nothing.

There was a quick step in the outer office—and Warren hurried in.

"Hello! You here?"

Then without a second glance toward her, he took some papers from his pocket and called: "Miss Perry—"

Miss Perry appeared at the door.

"Get me that brief on the Phillips case, and get out the carbon of the letter you wrote yesterday to Norris & Whimple. Anyone call up?"

"Yes, Mr. Whiting just called and wants you to call him."

"Anything else?"

"Mr. Leonard was here soon after you left. He said he'd try to get in about five."

"Now make three copies of this," taking another paper from his pocket, "you see that first clause is out. And address a large envelope to Morrison."

Then turning to the phone:

"Main Franklin."

"But dear," protested Helen. "I wanted to—"

"Mr. Whiting there? Oh, hello, Whiting! Yes, I heard from Bennett today. Think they're about ready to compromise. Well, I'll read you their letter."

A Busy Man

For fully fifteen minutes Warren talked over the phone, while Helen stood gazing out of the window, trying not to feel hurt and neglected.

Miss Perry had brought in the papers he had asked for and laid them on the desk, and even as he talked he was glancing over them. As soon as he hung up the receiver he began pencilling rapid notes on the margin, and again called the stenographer.

"Copy this right away. Insert one more line and insert two after this paragraph. One carbon will do."

Then, as though seeing Helen for the first time:

"Hello! Anything wrong?"

"Why, no, dear," flushed Helen. "I came down to that Italian place to order the olive oil. I was so near—I thought I'd come in."

But Warren, who was now frowning over a letter he had just opened, and which had evidently come while he was out, did not seem to hear.

"Dear, can't you give me a moment?" with almost tearful resentment.

"Can't you see I'm busy?" irritably. "It's quarter after three now," glancing at his watch, "and I've got to meet Billings at four."

Picking up her [illegible] Helen turned to the door—then paused. She could not let the stenographer think that Warren would not at least see her to the elevator.

"Can you come to the elevator with me?" in a low voice.

"What's that?" again absorbed in the letter.

But Helen was too hurt and too indignant to repeat her request. Perhaps there was something in her silence as she walked towards the door that was more effective than words, for now he looked up.

"Wait—I'll put you on the elevator." Then he hurried her along the hall. "Wait did you say you came down for?"

"To get some oil at that Italian importer's," patiently.

If she came often * * * But it had been months since she had been to his office! And Miss Perry—she and heard, of course, and was probably gloating over Warren's inattention.

Mr. Dawson's Courtesy

"Oh, I beg your pardon!" as a man, turning abruptly from the cigar stand at the entrance, ran into her. "Why, it's Mrs. Curtis!"

Startled, Helen looked up to find Mr. Dawson smiling down at her.

"Oh, that's so. I forgot Curtis was in this building. Which way?" as he passed out with her.

"The subway takes me nearest home."

"Then I'll walk over and put you on. Yes, I've plenty of time," as Helen protested. "But I don't like to think of your going up in the subway at this hour. You'll find it pretty crowded."

As they walked to the station, Mr. Dawson pointed out a number of the new skyscrapers, and Helen, to whom this downtown atmosphere seemed pulsating with great affairs, was a-thrill with interest.

"You ought to come down to the Stock Exchange some time; you'll find that stirring enough to suit you. I'll be glad to take you in the gallery there any time."

They were going down the subway steps now, a car was just rushing in, crowded to the doors.

"I can't let you get on that," as he threw a couple of tickets in the box and passed with her through the gate. "We'll wait for the next."

But he let three cars go by before he finally put her in a less crowded car, and stood back with lifted hat.

As the train dashed on Helen's thoughts swept back to Warren's office and to his cool inattention, then to the chance meeting with Mr. Dawson and his solicitous courtesy.

And then, loyally trying to force back all comparisons, she gazed over the heads of the swaying strap-hangers, and began diligently to plan a delicious dinner of soups, tooth pastes and hair restorers.

The Rights of Parents

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE great majority of parents may be divided into two classes: Those ruinously indulgent, and those who never remember the days of their youth.

Which means they are selfish and tyrannical, and that their children grow up knowing both oppression and suppression.

The parents have their rights: The rights to quiet hours, undisturbed evenings, and occasional possession of the "best room." The child has its rights: The right to dance and sing and be surrounded by its kind; the right to a home as that word is interpreted by youth.

These rights invariably clash, and instead of arbitrating, the more modern parents go to the wall. They become to the end of their days a sort of parental doormat on which is printed the word "Welcome" for all the gay, noisy companions of their children, but which is turned with the blank side up when their own friends appear. Naturally they cannot welcome their own friends for the reason that the children occupy the parlor, overflow into the dining room, and drive their parents to their rooms.

When the parents are less modern the result of this clashing of rights is even more unpleasant. There is no end of fuss. Its joys, and the girls and boys are unnaturally subdued—quiet, troubled little men and women, knowing a mirth that is no more spontaneous than the mechanical laugh of a mechanical doll.

I have a letter from a girl whose parents are plainly not modern. Indeed, it would seem as if they had drifted down from the sixteenth century without the progress of time having made a change in them, and with their hearts as wrinkled as an apple that the winds have forgotten, season after season, to knock from the tree.

She says she is eighteen; her sister is twenty-three. She makes a good salaryit no does her sister. Her parents are in comfortable circumstances, yet they have no home where they can invite company, that which should be the parlor being given over to the transaction of the father's business affairs.

"If it were necessary," writes the girl, "I should not complain; but my father doesn't need the money, and we are growing up and want to have company, as all girls do, and he will not let us have a room where we can see them."

Here is a clashing of rights that will drive these girls to the streets to meet the young men they are forbidden to ask to their homes. They want the right of youth—the supreme right of youth—and that is to love and to be loved, and to court and to be courted, and to marry. No man, if he be worth having, will ask a girl he has passed on the street several times to marry him. He wants to know her better. She has the right to demand a better acquaintance with him, and the only safe place in the world for this acquaintance to develop into love is in the girl's own parlor.

Denied the right to have him there, the girl grows wilful and love-making in public grows and in the dark corners of public parks results. Don't blame the girls!

If in this clashing of rights there were a happy medium, parents would find great enjoyment in their children, and children would learn a consideration for their parents which many never know.

For the sake of the children parents should not permit themselves to be doormats. For the sake of the children fatherhood and motherhood should not be symbolized by the red.

And it is for the sake of the children that every one on earth wants to do his best today.

Safe Hints

Dry and brittle hair should not be shampooed oftener than once a month or once every six weeks. Oil should be applied to the roots of the hair about twice a week, parting the hair and dipping the finger tips into oil. This is then applied directly to the scalp, being careful to avoid getting it on the hair.

* * *

To make onions tender and to fry them a golden brown without burning, slice them thin, place in frying-pan with lard, cover with cold water, and allow them to boil briskly until the water is entirely absorbed. In the lard which was first placed in the pan with the water they will fry tender and brown.

* * *

If brass fire-irons have become blackened, try cleaning them with a little spirits of salts, after which wash them in warm water and polish in the usual way. Any brass may be cleaned in this way, but on no account should the spirits of salts be used with any lacquered articles, as it will take the lacquer off.

Growing children need bodily warmth. A nice cup of bouillon made in an instant by dropping an Armour Bouillon Cube into a cup of hot water will keep the cold out. Armour's Bouillon is a delicious savory broth, tasting of beef, of chicken), vegetables, and delicate seasoning. Excellent for school luncheons. Grocers and Druggists everywhere.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup Than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2.50—can easily be made at home. You will find nothing that takes hold on an obstinate cough more quickly, usually ending it inside of 24 hours. Excellent, too, for croup, whooping cough, sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Put into a pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, then add the Sugar Syrup. Shake well. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This is just laxative enough to help cure a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, an unfailing remedy in a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe is now used by thousands of housewives throughout the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equalled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

There appeared to be a little improvement in stock markets at the opening and Boston had a firm undertone, although trading was quiet. In New York sentiment was a shade better perhaps, but prices were irregular. There had been a rally in American stocks in London before exchanges opened on this side, ended before exchanges opened on this side, ended before the renewal condition of that class of securities in the British metropolis, and this was helpful in New York. New developments did not materially change the general situation, which is largely controlled by outdoors sentiment.

There was a better tone of copper issues in New York at the end of the first hour when Steel had increased an earlier gain. This was also true of American Can. About the latter company a Baltimore dispatch says the Federal investigation of its affairs has been resumed in view of the that witnesses said to have been summoned from New York did not put in an appearance. Final action by the Grand Jury is looked for this week.

The rise in United Fruit was a feature of the Boston market. By 11 o'clock it had climbed 3 points. Coppers were irregular here.

The New York subtreasury gained $398,000 from banks yesterday, and has gained $4,883,000 since Friday.

It is said in Washington that Pujo probers will finish their report on the Money Trust investigation by tonight and that it will be made public on Friday next.

London Copper Opens Strong.

There was not much buying of the metal at present, according to reports and sales in the American and foreign markets for the past two weeks are not estimated at above 120,000,000 pounds. Electrolytic is selling below 15 cents a pound. One large agency, it is stated, is offering it for all months up to June, to be delivered in thirty days, at 14 cents a pound. One of the most accurate of New York writers says: "Further declines in copper prices are looked for by well posted people in the trade and 12 cents has been named as the ultimate level to which the metal might drop."

London bears made another onslaught on prices in the London warrants market yesterday and the speculative position of the metal is not good.

Chino directors meet tomorrow and the question of declaring an initial dividend will come up. One optimist is that "the company will be placed either on a $5 per annum basis or that no dividend will be declared at this time."

January production of the Nevada Consolidated was 4,160,706 pounds of copper, compared with 5,075,631 in December and 6,509,228 in the corresponding month a year ago.

Harrimans Active in New York.

Prices were irregular in New York at the opening, but a number of the leaders were higher at the start. Reading, Erie and Pennsylvania made fractional gains. Amalgamated sold higher, as did also Steel.

Consolidated Gas declined. During the first half hour American Can rose more than a point. Union Pacific was one of the most active stocks during the first fifteen minutes, advancing a point and then selling off ¾.

Southern Pacific opened ⅜ higher and then slashed back to Tuesday's final. Mexican Petroleum began ⅜ lower, but made up the loss and advanced a quarter of a point. Canadian Pacific was strong and rose 1¾. Among earliest gains were the following: Amalgamated, ⅜; American Can, ⅜; Steel common, ¼; Pennsylvania, ¼; Lake Erie & Western, ⅝; Erie 1st, ¼; Central Leather, ½; Atchison, ¾, and California Petroleum, ¼.

Losses included Missouri Pacific ¾, Woolworth ½, Utah Copper ¾, Republic Iron & Steel 1¼, Consolidated Gas ½ and American Telephone & Telegraph ⅝.

The Curb was quiet.

Americans in London rallied, and Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific were prominent there.

Financial News in Brief.

Persons who have been the followers of the stock market for many years say they have never seen such a condition as now exists. There is greater depression in financial districts than there was immediately after the 1907 panic.

President Truesdale of the Lackawanna road, in his annual report, saw no hope of obtaining an advance in railroad rates.

The New York Anthracite Judiciary Committee voted to favorably report the "blue sky" bill providing for the regulation of investment companies so that a prospective investor can obtain reliable information about a corporation offering securities for sale.

It is said in London that as soon as peace in the Balkans is formally ratified, there will be a great flood of new security to be loose upon the European markets. Immense sums of cash have been hoarded on the Continent, and financiers will try to get it invested in stocks and bonds when confidence is restored.

American Can directors will hold a regular quarterly meeting tomorrow and it is expected they will then take up the question of paying a part of accrued dividends on preferred stock.

When such investment lames as Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Lackawanna, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central and not a few others decline because of widespread and unjustified pessimism the situation is unquestionably serious.

Homestake Mining Company directors have declared a cash dividend of 65 cents a share and also a stock dividend of 15 per cent.

SUGGEST ADDITIONS TO HARVARD SQ. IMPROVEMENT PLAN

The plans for the improvement of Harvard square, Cambridge, are meeting the approval of business men of that city. In addition to the changes already proposed, ex-Alderman Charles H. Lake wants an escalator at the Harvard Square station, and wants more surface cars from Boston to Cambridge.

In its report the committee of the Harvard Square Business Men's Association declares that the main objects of the changes will be to increase trade in that district. They declare every inducement should be held out to residents by means of bright stores, up-to-date shops, widened streets and good car service, to make the square a shopping centre.

INSIST ON SEPARATE INDUSTRIES BOARD

The executive board of the Boston Central Labor Union has passed a resolution insisting upon the absolute necessity of the Board of Labor and Industries, opposing its consolidation with the Industrial Accident Board and urging Governor Foss to appoint the members of the Board of Labor and Industries, as provided under the new law. The committee indorsed the bill regarding the publication of facts concerning labor disputes.

IF YOU HAVE A FAVORITE LIE, SEND IT ALONG

George Washington never told a lie. What is your favorite one?

Far be it from the Lie Editor to question the authenticity of the belief in the absolute veracity of General Washington, for even this editor quivering with the ghoulish glee of anticipation that many weary lies will be unfolded through his column, believes in the honorable opinion that our first President was a man of profound veracity.

But could it not have been possible that at some time during his public life he had to tell a "white" one. Just think, if he had been "in" to every one who called on him when he was President. Why, he'd never to some time or other avoid circumstances by a seeming untruth. But most lies of this sort are good natured and hurt no one.

So what is your favorite lie?

Already contributors are beginning to fess up to their own particular, teeny weeny lie. Here are some letters:

"Car Was Late" Is Her Lie.

Editor AMERICAN: I am a working girl, and I must confess that hardly a week goes by that I don't have to tell a lie, and it's the same lie every time.

Perhaps I can be forgiven even if I do tell this lie, I consider it is a "white lie," anyway. A "white lie," you know, is a lie that is told because of necessity.

Let me explain. I have to be in work every morning at 7 o'clock. In the shop where I am employed there is no time clock, but the boss keeps a time card of his own. If any of the girls are late to work money for the time they are late is taken from their pay when pay day comes around.

Well, in order to get to work on time I have to get up at 6 o'clock, help mother with the breakfast, do the dishes and then catch the car for work. Often I have to hustle to get my regular car and about once every week I have that car to wait or have to take the next one. Of course, I'm ten minutes late. Then I tell the boss my lie—my favorite lie. Here it is: "The car was late this morning."

MISS MAE SMITH.
Roxbury.

Lies About Her Dog.

Editor AMERICAN: My favorite lie is about my dog. I like this lie the best because I tell it the most and therefore get away with it easiest. I tell it when I am among strangers who talk about their dogs. No matter what the other man's dog did, my dog did something a little better. I tell the other man and he switches to politics. I never had a dog, which makes the lie all the better. JOSEPH DODD.
Roxbury.

A Bald-Beaded Lie.

Editor AMERICAN: I have one particular lie that I will never surrender. Truth may prevail in everything else, but I will cling to my favorite lie until I die. It's my hair lie. I am bald-headed. I wear a wig. It is a good wig. It cost me $60. It ought to be good.

But occasionally people ask me if it is a wig. I immediately say: "No; certainly not," and then proceed to extol a virtue I cannot lay claim to about my wig. I have spoken truthfully about this subject on the goods on many other occasions, but never about my wig. Such is the truth about my lie, my one unalterable lie.

Morgan Gains Fast, Says Son, Here for Harvard Meeting

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., who is in Boston to attend a meeting today of the Harvard corporation, says his father is "doing nicely" and that each cablegram he receives from Europe is more reassuring concerning the financier's health.

Mr. Morgan is at the Belleview with his secretary, Mr. Bennett. The heir-apparent to the Morgan throne is an athletic young man, with a friendly smile.

In many respects he greatly resembles his father. Like him, he is tall in stature and brisk of manner.

There was nothing in his external appearance which would attract attention other than his size. He wore a suit of dark gray and a dark pink negligee shirt with a wing collar and dark green tie.

1911 FORD TOURING CAR
CHEAP FOR CASH

This car has been overhauled and newly painted, and has always been carefully used; everyone knows how good a Ford car is, and it is also easy on gasoline and tires; it is fully equipped and is being sold for no fault, only I have purchased a Ford runabout; I don't need 2 cars now; any gentleman or lady in search of a first-class automobile for family or business use will do well to call and see it, as it is in every way as represented, and I will allow a trial of 30 days to test it in every way; I have left it with the Bay State Motor Car Co., from whom I purchased my Ford runabout; now I will let it go for $350, and it looks and runs like new, as I only used it very little and always took the best of care; the Bay State people are at 148 Berkeley st., next Youth's Companion building, corner of Columbus av., 3 minutes' walk from Park sq. P. S.—Ask to see my auto. M. L. H. PERKINS, tel. 21789 Tremont.

Let Us Send No More Notes to Mexico

If this country is not going to intervene in Mexico, it is to be hoped that there will be no more "warnings" or messages of admonition from Washington to whatever factionist happens to hold the bloody eminence of the Mexican Presidency.

This country's dignity has not been very impressive through the Southern disorders. While Americans and foreigners, whom we are pledged to protect under the Monroe Doctrine, have been robbed and even murdered throughout Mexico we have done nothing. Yes, there is something we have done; at every stage of the trouble we have started soldiers toward Mexico—and pulled them up sharply at the border.

We did not even stop the shooting across our own border in the early stages of the Madero revolution.

We should have carried out the first implied threat we made. If we had, there would never have come about the condition of anarchy that exists in Mexico now.

As we did not, and as it is evident that Mr. Taft cannot be provoked into maintaining the dignity of our country, let us have no more pretence that we mean to influence events south of the Rio Grande.

A year ago we warned Mexico that American life and property must be protected; American life and property continued to suffer, and we did nothing.

Three days ago we notified Diaz and Huerta, through our Ambassador, that we expected Madero and Suarez to have a fair trial—the execution of Gustavo Madero having indicated the necessity of this sort of intimation. The reply was prompt—ex-President Madero and ex-Vice-President Suarez were shot to death that very night.

There is no use shaking your finger under a man's nose unless you are prepared to strike if he fails to heed the warning.

There is no use of a big country admonishing another country unless it is prepared to enforce its orders.

There is no use of this country continuing to put itself in a position to be snubbed by a couple of murderous adventurers who have seized a government and whose hope of holding it lies in slaughtering those who might contest their power.

The only note that will receive respectful consideration in Mexico must be delivered by our soldiers, and Mr. Taft doesn't know how to write that kind.

The $50,000 Raised at Progressive Dinner Was Given by Men With No Axes to Grind

It is not likely that the annals of Massachusetts politics will reveal a public meeting of a political party so remarkable as that held by the Progressive party last Saturday night at the South Armory.

Under any circumstances it is difficult to obtain a full attendance at a political meeting out of the political season. The attendance alone at this Progressive meeting would have been noteworthy if there were no other noteworthy circumstances attending it.

But what makes this meeting stand out beyond all other political meetings is the sum of money for the political expenses of the party which was raised among the men who had NO AXES TO GRIND and who did not represent any special interests which make political contributions as part of the promotion expenses of some enterprise seeking governmental favor and from which they expect large private profits.

The men and women of the Progressive party, when the political season is past, when the excitement is over, when the pursuit of victory and office has been abandoned, IN ONE MEETING RAISE $50,000 to meet the expenses of appealing to the people in behalf of their cause.

That this could be done by ANY party would be remarkable, but that it has been done by a NEW party is wonderful. It indicates the character of the movement and gives the strongest kind of evidence that it will go on with its fight for the cause in which it believes.

In the midst of a national campaign in which victory was clearly seen to be hovering about the Democratic banners, that great and ancient party found it impossible to raise $50,000 for the national committee in Massachusetts. No Republican campaign fund was ever raised from disinterested sources which approached the size of that contributed last week by the Progressives.

It is an example to the members of both the older parties. If the campaign funds of all parties were thus raised from the disinterested masses of the party the conditions of this country would soon become healthy. It is by means of campaign contributions that the trusts and the other special interests get the control which they exercise over our public officers, legislative, administrative and judicial.

If the political parties had no temptation to take this "hush money," there would be sufficient independence and courage in making laws and in their enforcement to render the schemes of Wall Street and of public exploiters everywhere dangerous and unprofitable.

The Straw Man's "Warning"

Wars of Future May Be Bloodless, Use of High-Velocity Projectiles Demonstrates

Modern Small Calibre, High Speed Bullet Combines Mercy and Effectiveness by Inflicting Small Wound, Which Heals Rapidly—When Vital Organ Is Not Penetrated Victim Is Merely Incapacitated and Becomes a Burden to the Enemy, Balkan War Proves.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE experiences of the surgeons at the field hospitals in the Balkan War have again demonstrated what was shown during the Spanish-American War, viz., the combined mercifulness and effectiveness of the modern small-calibre, high-speed bullet.

It is merciful because it produces small wounds, which heal rapidly, even when important organs are penetrated, and it is effective because, when it does not kill outright, it renders the victim of its stroke unable to continue fighting, while it leaves him in condition to quit the field and to become a serious charge upon the resources of the enemy, since his friends must, necessarily, nurse and care for him.

It costs more, both in labor and in money, to care for wounded soldiers than to bury dead ones. And so the modern rifles, which dart bullets that resemble short, thick needles, with velocities that might almost be compared with those of meteors, tend to abolish war by making it more costly.

Some very remarkable stories are told by surgeons of the effects of bullets that fly with a speed of 2,000 or more feet per second, and have a diameter of only a small fraction of an inch.

Bullets May Pass Through Heart and Brain Without Killing

Professor Tedlicka, of the Red Cross Corps at Belgrade, reports that these bullets may even pass through the heart and the brain without killing the victim.

When other organs are penetrated by them the wounds heal rapidly. Unless the speed of the projectile has been reduced by a long flight, it will pass through a bone without seriously shattering it. Nevertheless it puts its victim hors de combat and makes him a charge upon the financial resources of the country for which he fights. Yet all this is done without extreme suffering for the wounded person. There is less amputating of legs and arms than there was when the big, shattering bullets of our Civil War period were employed, and the small wounds now produced entail relatively little pain.

Single Discharge May Level Several Ranks of the Enemy

In fact, it would appear that the modern bullet is actually aseptic, or, in other words, it prevents putrefaction in the wounds which it makes. This is ascribed to the high temperature that it attains by its swift rush through the air, and the heat developed by the partial arrest of its motion when it strikes. If a velocity of 5,000 feet per second could be imparted to a bullet its friction with the air would produce a temperature equal to that of red heat. Even at the velocities now attainable, a lead bullet would be melted on striking an immovable steel target.

Not only will one of these bullets often pass directly through the body of a soldier, but there are instances in which the same bullet has gone through from four to six men, standing one behind another.

Thus a single discharge may level several ranks of the enemy, putting the wounded persons out of commission, while killing, or fatally injuring, but a minimum number of them. Those in the front rank have the best chance of escaping with comparatively insignificant wounds because they encounter the projectiles at their highest speed.

Since it does not appear probable that war can be immediately, or altogether, abolished, it would seem that the most merciful course would be to increase still further the velocity of the projectiles, while making them as small as possible, for thus the actual slaughter and suffering would be diminished, while the power to paralyze the enemy would remain or even be increased.

The humanity of war could be promoted by substituting for bullets some other form of projectile, which would merely stun without wounding or killing. If it were possible to shoot some kind of stifling smoke, or vapor, into the faces of the enemy, which had the effect of rendering them temporarily incapable of action, a glorious victory might be gained without the shedding of a drop of blood.

None Can Tell What the Future Century May Hold

Who can be sure that something of this kind may not be done before another century has passed? Then a great battle would become no bloodier than a fight with snowballs, and yet the result might be just as decisive, for one side is victorious and the other beaten even in a snow battle. It is the moral element that controls in either case, for the side that can stand the most pounding is the side that wins, whether the missiles consist of balls of lead or balls of snow.

Reducing the Cost of Living; the Real Contentment

Two Sides to Important Question Concerning the Wage Earner—Happiness in Living Means an Interest in Life and Making Most of Our Lot

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

THERE is a certain man striving to get enough money to fulfill an ambition.

He has worked hard all his life, and has never taken a vacation—because his vacation is really his ambition.

This man has heard of a certain hotel in Paris where he can live for about ten francs a day. Ten francs are about $2.

Two dollars a day for one year, amount to $730. In order to get $730 per annum as interest on capital, he must have $14,600 at 5 per cent.

But he needs more than this, for he has got to provide for clothing, laundry and the smaller incidentals. So he puts his total at the lowest figure possible, $18,000, or $900 per year; or, 4,500 francs per year.

This is a lovely plan, and if the man lives, he will carry it out.

But—

He is overlooking a great and important fact.

This will not establish the cost of living for him, because he has actually made no plan at all for living. He has planned only for food, clothing and a place to sleep.

A man who moves to Paris to live the rest of his life on his income takes with him more than his body.

His mind goes along with him.

He has not provided anything for that part of him.

Its needs are real, and must not be overlooked.

II.

Hence, there is another side to the cost of living, a side separate and distinct from the question of existing. It is existing—getting food, shelter and clothes, that being the brunt of the burden. Real living, that is, having something for which to live, is one of the most inexpensive things of this merry life.

Contentment is a better investment than fun. And for this reason: contentment, like true love, is lasting; but fun may leave you with a blank mind in ten minutes. It is fun that helps push up the cost of living. Contentment, based on reason, keeps it down and leaves you plenty of time to do your part in figuring out how the country should be run so as to give every man a chance.

All this leads up to the question of taxes.

No man likes to pay taxes. It seems to be the nearest thing to something for nothing in this life. So many a man will dodge his taxes if he can learn to dodge.

But there are taxes and taxes.

In 1905 the Census Bureau issued a diagram showing the taxes we pay ON OUR OWN PROSPERITY. Nobody demands these taxes. We simply break our necks, climbing over each other in our eagerness to put our money down before the tax collector.

Liquors (beer and ale)	$275,000,000
Tobacco (chewing and smoking)	125,000,000
Tobacco (cigars and cigarettes)	225,000,000
Liquors (hard drinks)	130,000,000
Candy	80,000,000
Total	$835,000,000

The total of these few temptations alone is $835,000,000.

If we were living, as a nation, as the man who is going to Paris proposes to live—that is, on income, it would require $27,500,000,000 in government bonds at 3 per cent. to pay the above bill alone.

Yes, your conclusion is right. That is a lot of money. And it is all fun. There is no particular contentment about it. Particularly when we add the above $835,000,000 to the cost of living.

III.

Now, every one of us is more or less like the gentleman who is going to Paris. We look forward to a good vacation in the future when there will be no work. But we differ from him in this: He is actually making it himself. Most of us are hoping for it.

Take just a little cash out of hand today and put it by for twenty years hence.

Don't plan on living in Paris, or anywhere else; plan on living.

Living means an interest in life, which is way ahead of shelter, food and clothing.

Living means finding out every day something, or somebody, to live for, and also finding happiness in that living. There are no taxes on this that a man cannot pay gladly.

The cost of living is high when we are no better off at night in mind, hope, interest and contentment than we were in the morning.

And that happens when the day's taxes have been high.

GREAT GENTS

By WILLIAM F. KIER

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our own sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."
—LONGFELLOW.

LIVES of great men often teach us, when we dig into the past,
That it isn't any pleasure building up a name to last.
Julius Caesar had to hustle with his soldiers strong and tall;
Both his heels were full of chilblains and he had the grippe in Gaul;
Oft in howling Briton blizzards, oft in danger of his life,
But when all his fights were over he was sliced up, as you know;
Lives of great men all remind us that it's safer not to grow.

Stern Napoleon was another, and the life he filled so full
Ended on a cheerless island where he couldn't use his "pull."
Socrates was great, yes, wondrous—but they made him drink that stuff,
Aesop was a master thinker—so they threw him from a bluff.
Burns and Poe and Goldsmith hungered when they wrote their lines sublime,
Though they left a thousand footprints on the shifting sands of time.
Think of all the thrones that tottered and of all the kings that fell!
Lives of great men all remind us that we're feeling fairly well.
